Ike in Address Tonight

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower conferred with scientific and other advisers today at the largest meeting of the National Security Council ever held.

He called the meeting in advance of tonight's talk to the people on "science and security."

The President and his advisers met as congressmen of both parties demanded that he tell the nation frankly where it stands in the missile race with Russia.

Associate White House press secretary Anne Wheaton said that about 45 ranking government officials and members of the President's Scientific Advisory Committee attended the Security Council meeting.

Its size made it necessary to move the meeting from the cabinet room, the council's usual meeting place, to the White House broadcast room.

Military Heads Attend

In addition to the officials who usually attend NSC meetings, the secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, and the military heads of the services attended.

Heading the scientists was Dr. I. I. Rabi, Columbia University professor who is chairman of the Scientific Advisory Committee.

Mrs. Wheaton said that as far as she knew it was the largest meeting of the NSC ever held. She said the large attendance was planned before the President decided to make his television speech tonight.

Asked whether the size of the meeting was prompted by Sputnik II, Mrs. Wheaton said that it was in the works before then but was "connected with all the developments of the last week or 10 days."

The press secretary would not comment on whether the President would make a surprise scientific announcement tonight. But she said the speech would be one of the most important he has ever made.

Larson Aiding Draft

Arthur Larson, the President's new adviser on government information, is his chief aide in drafting the speech, she said.

The President this morning completed "a pretty strong draft" of tonight's speech, but may make revisions later today, Mrs. Wheaton said.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said "much more is needed" than a "generalized pep talk by the President". He urged Eisenhower to summon a special session of congress.

Sen. John Kenney (D-Mass.), another member of the Foreign Relations Committee, demanded that Eisenhower "tell us squarely where we stand" and withhold the "pious beautitudes of faith and hope."

The president is expected to give as frank an appraisal as possible, within the bounds of security, of this country's current missile progress and to call for new programs to increase scientific and engineering manpower.

But it was not known whether he would announce any dramatic

Democratic Power in Three Westmoreland Cities Saved Judges

Heavy Democratic concentrations in the cities of Monessen, Arnold and Jeannette and in Rostraver Twp. enabled the Westmoreland County courthouse machine to elect three common pleas judges Tuesday, analysis of returns from around the county showed today.

Except for lop-sided "straight ticket" voting in these areas, one or two of the Republican judicial candidates could have come through.

Elsewhere in the county, including Greensburg, Latrobe, big Hempfield Twp. near Greensburg, the Ligonier-Derry area and even in New Kensington, the GOP candidates either won or made surprisingly strong races.

Monessen and Rostraver Twp., both regarded as the political preserve of Chief County Detective Arthur B. "Buddy" Turner, remained the key stronghold of the Democratic machine.

Of the 9,000 votes which separated District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco, low man of the three successful Democratic judicial candidates, from Robert H. Rial, the top Republican, Monessen alone furnished about 3,200. Rostraver Twp. accounted for nearly 1,000 more.

In Arnold, Judge David H. Weiss of Monessen was the low Democrat. But he carried that city by about 1,500 over Rial.

Jeannette gave Sculco, the low Democrat there, a majority of slightly over 1,000 above Rial.

These four areas thus accounted for about two-thirds of the votes which saved the Democratic organization from losing one or more of its judicial candidates. The rest came from scattered smaller boroughs and townships.

Greensburg, the county seat where the party registration is about evenly divided, gave all three of the Republican judicial candidates big majorities. Avra N. Pershing Jr., who ran a close second to Rial on the Republican ticket throughout the county, polled 4,065 in Greensburg to only 2,889 for Judge Edward G. Bauer, who was the high Democrat in the county seat.

Both Pershing and Bauer live in Greensburg.

Willis E. Topper, the low Republican in Greensburg, was about 1,000 ahead of Sculco, who ran last of the Democrats there.

Latrobe, an industrial city where the registration favors the Democrats, gave both Rial and Pershing slight majorities over Weiss and Sculco. Bauer led the field in Latrobe with 2,402 to 2,378

District Man Reinstated by Highways Dept.

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Highways Department today announced it has reinstated one of three western Pennsylvania highway supervisory employes suspended last August for alleged irregularities involving use of department materials.

The department said it restored C. Chesney Wood, Waynesburg, to his county maintenance superintendent job after an investigation cleared him of all charges.

At the same time, the department said Henry Zermani, assistant maintenance superintendent for Washington County was dismissed for "permitting Department of Highways materials, equipment and personnel to be used on private projects." Owners of these projects will be billed by the Commonwealth, the department said.

Monessen Lad Gets 18 Months In Crime Spree

A Monessen youth, Harry Laatu, 18, was sentenced to 18 months in jail yesterday by Washington County Judge George T. Cummins.

Laatu was sentenced after pleading guilty to charges of larceny and burglary.

He was one of three youths arrested after a wild crime spree in three counties this summer. One of the trio was turned over to juvenile authorities.

The third youth, William Manor Jr., of Elizabeth is being held by federal authorities in Kentucky. He was scheduled to stand trial with Laatu but sawed his way out of Washington County jail several weeks ago.

Another Monessen man was fined $100 and costs by Judge Cummins yesterday with an alternative of 90 days in jail.

Raymond A. Toney was given the choice after pleading guilty to a charge of turning off his car lights to avoid identification by police.

Melvin C. Wheatley, Webster, pleaded guilty to driving when his license was suspended and was fined $100 and paroled for 90 days to pay fine and costs.

Hit-run Accident

Larry Martin, 402 Grant St., Belle Vernon, reported to police that a hit-and-run driver damaged his car while it was parked on Manown St. between 8 and 11 p.m. last night. The left front fender was struck.

Veterans Day Parade Monday in California

A parade will feature the annual Monongahela Valley celebration of Veterans Day next Monday in California.

The line of march, expected to be one of the longest in the borough's history, will move promptly at 4 p. m.

At least 15 musical organizations have indicated they will take part. Other marching groups will include Army and National Guard units as well as veterans organizations from throughout the valley.

The Veterans Day celebration is promoted annually by veterans groups in California, Monessen, Charlerol, Belle Vernon, Monongahela and Donora. The event is alternated each year among the communities.

The big parade is only part of the day-long observance. There will also be appropriate memorial services and a variety of other activities, including a midget football game.

Participating in the parade will be units from the Monessen Thomas McKee American Legion Post 28, the Monessen Allison-Lescanac Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1190 and the Belle Vernon American Legion Post 659.

In Monessen, the traditional Veterans Day memorial service will take place at 11 a. m. in Sixth St. Park. The brief service will be cosponsored by the city's VFW and Legion posts.

Delivering the memorial address will be the Rev. Andrew Parvensky, pastor of St. Mary's Greek Catholic Church.

Wreaths will be placed on the Park memorial by both the Legion and VFW. The two posts will march to Sixth St. by way of Donner Ave., beginning promptly at 10:30 a. m.

Rocket To Moon Awaited

LONDON (UP)—Will they do it? The whole world wondered whether the Russians would try to fire a rocket to the moon today in celebration of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

There was no comment from Moscow which displayed today a wealth of new rocket weapons including field artillery rockets 50 to 60 feet long. But still the world waited.

There also has been speculation the Russians might already have fired a rocket timed to hit the moon with a hydrogen bomb during an eclipse today. The total eclipse is timed for 9:12 a.m.e.s.t.

The New York Herald Tribune quoted Soviet United Nations delegate Arkady A. Sobolev as telling a guest at a U.N. reception Wednesday night in New York Russia hoped to send a rocket to the moon today.

And the National Broadcasting Company announced plans to televise the moon's eclipse — and ready to show the blast of any lunar explosion.

Ike to Speak Tonight

President Eisenhower scheduled a "chins up" television and radio speech tonight to the nation to try and restore confidence in U.S. scientific programs in light of Russia's space conquest.

Also in Washington Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) proposed the appointment of a "missile and satellite program coordinator" to eliminate waste and duplication and regain leadership in the field.

Reports poured in from around the world of new sightings of Sputnik II—and with them fanciful reports of mysterious lights in the sky, of mysterious objects flitting through space and mysterious objects falling to the earth.

Soviet scientists have stated throughout the week they had the capability of sending a rocket to the moon with new superfuels but they have steered clear of outright predictions.

Library Board Pleased with Bond Issue OK

Directors of the Monessen Civic Library Association yesterday voiced gratification at the approval by the voters of a $200,000 bond issue to construct a new public library building.

At their regular monthly meeting in the library on Fifth St., the directors discussed the bond issue, which was approved Tuesday by a five-to-one vote.

Speaking for the board, President Charles C. Throop expressed thanks to all the many groups in the city which actively supported the bond issue.

He was instructed to put the board's gratitude in writing to Donald C. Duvall, chairman of the Committee for the Library, which carried on an aggressive campaign for favorable votes.

Throop said consultations will be resumed immediately with city officials concerning construction of the new building and plans for conversion of the present library to municipal operation.

He indicated that Architect J. Russell Bailey, of Orange, Va., who is designing the new building has been instructed to proceed with the plans which are in only a preliminary stage at the present time.

Donora Man Is Disorderly Here

Thomas Griger, 30, Donora, was being held in the Monessen jail this morning following his arrest yesterday on drunk and disorderly conduct charges, it was reported today.

Griger, it was said, created a disturbance at 12th St. and Morgan Ave. He also became unruly at the police station and had to be placed in solitary.

He reportedly damaged a wrist watch belonging to Patrolman Peter Belavich.

He is being held in lieu of $25 forfeit. He also must pay for the watch damages.

1960 NEXT?—Gov. Robert B. Meyner's wife, Helen, grins delightedly as he hugs his mother, Sophie, at home in Philipsburg after learning he had won a smashing re-election as governor of New Jersey. His plurality was nearly 200,000 votes. The victory raised a strong possibility that he will be the Democratic presidential or vice presidential candidate in 1960.

Both Parties Pleased With Election Results

By UNITED PRESS

Both major parties in Pennsylvania today looked ahead with confidence to the 1958 statewide campaigns, with both sides claiming added strength from gains scored at the grass roots level in Tuesday's balloting.

The voting for municipal and county offices saw the Democrats strengthen in many spots the power that made Gov. George M. Leader the first Democratic governor in 16 years back in 1955, and raised their hopes for retaining control of state government another four years.

Republican leaders, while conceding some losses, pointed to "unanticipated gains," capture of judicial posts and many township and borough offices.

Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom said his party "showed real strength" in a string of local victories, and said the GOP "built a solid foundation for victory" next year.

But Democratic State Chairman Joseph M. Barr said the results indicated "evidence of a Democratic tide running deep and strong," and the party's victories in numerous local contests "point the way to victory in 1958."

"While there were no statewide contests," Barr added, "the election results also reflected voter approval of the policies and accomplishments of the Leader administration."

Key Elections Next Year

The off-year elections were considered tests of party strength and organization for 1958, when Pennsylvanians will elect a new governor, a U.S. senator, other state officials, and decide the makeup of the state's congressional delegation and control of the next General Assembly.

However, the head of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor warned both parties against considering the election results as votes for organization "rather than policies, programs and principles with which the voters have identified these local political organizations."

"The organization which arrogantly denies the people this recognition and endeavors to prevail

Library Bond Issue Passes 3,332 to 640

Complete unofficial election returns today showed that Monessen voters approved a city bond issue of $200,000 for the construction of a public library building by a vote of 3,332 in favor to just 640 opposed.

Some early issues of The Daily Independent yesterday incorrectly reported the yes vote as 2,332.

Crucible Steel Miners Still Out on Strike

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Crucible Steel Co. said today miners at its Greene County operation were continuing a 4-day strike in defiance of an agreement reached in Washington with the United Mine Workers.

The wildcat walkout, involving a seniority dispute, spread to 12 other operations in Greene, Fayette and Washington counties, idling about 9,000 miners.

Crucible said a "mutually satisfactory" agreement regarding application of seniority rights was reached in Washington Wednesday. The agreement was presented by UMW District 4 officers to members of Local 4731 at a meeting in Crucible Wednesday night.

However, picketing continued at the Crucible pit today.

Meanwhile, District 4 President William Hynes said in Uniontown, Pa., that efforts were being made to end the dispute without the necessity of intervention by UMW President John L. Lewis.

A special union meeting was scheduled today by the Nemaco local of the Buckeye Mining Co. at Nemaco. The operation, owned by the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., was closed by roving bands of pickets Wednesday.

Planning Meeting

The Monessen Planning Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the City Building. A spokesman said the meeting is open to the public.

ICBM Is Shown For First Time In Big Parade

MOSCOW (UP) — The Soviet Union today displayed for the first time a rocket officially identified as an intercontinental ballistics missile (ICBM).

The 60 to 75 foot long missile was part of a wealth of secret new rocket weapons displayed in Red Square during ceremonies commemorating the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The official Soviet news agency Tass identified the huge mystery rocket as an ICBM. Western military observers who saw it had believed earlier it was a single-stage overgrown version of the World War II German V2.

They had believed it probably was an intermediate range rocket.

Tass did not elaborate on its announcement.

The rocket weapons were highlights of a massive armed display in Red Square commemorating the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

A Soviet commentator atop the Gum department store facing the Kremlin across Red Square gave a running commentary on the new secret weapons.

"The Soviet Union now possesses long range rockets and field rockets," the Gum commentator said. "The intercontinental ballistics missile has strengthened Soviet defenses."

Then came the parade of rockets and the commentator said some of them were "based on the principle of jet propulsion."

The jet-propelled rocket weapons were followed by heavy rocket artillery drawn by tremendous caterpillar transporters.

Claims New Type Rocket

"They are of a new type of a new design and on them are tremendous heavy rockets," the radio commentator said. "They must weigh anything up to many tons . . . here comes another one, a new rocket. This is something tremendous. It has to be seen to be believed. It must be somewhere about 50 feet long."

Western observers estimated the big green-painted rocket at an even 60 feet long, about 10 feet thick with a pointed nose and fins at the end.

It appeared similar to a wartime German V-2 and observers said they believed it was an intermediary stage rocket and not Russia's ICBM.

Observers also noted a huge 200 millimeter cannon which was believed capable of firing an atomic shell similar to the U.S. Army's "Atomic Annie."

The hour-long parade was the longest since the war.

The thousands watching in Red Square were joined by the top dignitaries of the Communist world including Mao Tse-Tung of Communist China, Wladyslaw Gomulka of Poland and Ho Chi Minh of Communist North Viet Nam.

Malinovsky, a former Czarist sergeant who replaced Marshal Georgi Zhukov as defense minister, spoke from a terrace above the Lenin - Stalin mausoleum flanked by Soviet Communist Party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev and other members of the Presidium.

"The Soviet forces are capable of crushing any aggressor should he attack our country," Malinov-

Ingrid Bergman, Rossellini in Legal Separation

ROME (UP)—Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini obtained a legal separation in Rome today citing "incompatibility of character" as their grounds. Their lawyer made the announcement.

The bombshell disclosure was made to the press by Ercole Graziadei, the couple's attorney.

He said Miss Bergman, barely recovered from a bout of Asian flu, went to the Palace of Justice at 11:45 a.m. (5:45 a.m. e.s.t.) this morning and formally declared her legal separation from Rossellini before Magistrate Dr. Mario Elia.

"The entire action which was carried out in greatest secrecy, ended at 1 p.m. (7 a.m. e.s.t.)," Ercole's communique said.

"The separation is consensual (by mutual consent), for incompatibility of character," the announcement said.

It said Rossellini left immediately after the visit to the law courts "for an unknown destination."

Miss Bergman returned to the home which she had shared here with Rossellini only since last Thursday after a separation of more than 10 months.

Rossellini went to Paris again during the weekend but returned to Rome Tuesday.

The Italian movie director had been in India shooting documentary films during his long separation from Ingrid. In that time, his name had been linked romantically to Mrs. Sonali Das Gupta, a beautiful Indian movie script writer.

City Removing Bricks On Schoonmaker Ave.

Monessen street department crews were busy today removing bricks from a block area of Schoonmaker Ave. between 11th and 12th streets.

Acting City Engineer Richard Belan said the bricks will be salvaged and used for other projects.

"It will be safe for motorists to travel at reduced speeds on the concrete base under the bricks," Belan said. "The bricks are being removed at this time so that utilities will be able to make necessary adjustments before Schoonmaker is repaved with concrete."

Belan said work is progressing on schedule between 12th and 17th streets. He said contractor Frank Donatelli of Pittsburgh is hopeful that at least one-lane of Schoonmaker will be completed by Christmas. This will open the city to traffic entering from the west.

"The progress depends a good deal on the utilities," Belan explained. "Power and telephone poles have already been moved along most of the area to be repaved. However it is necessary for both the gas and water company to install new lines and this is taking time."

Belan added that the utilities have cooperated fully with the contractor.

"Because of that, we hope to have Schoonmaker opened at least partially from 17th to 12th by the end of the year."

The Schoonmaker project is being financed by the state Highway Department since the avenue carries Route 906 through the city.

Belan said additional bricks will be removed between 10th and 11th Streets tomorrow. He said the area will be reopened to traffic as soon as possible.

U. S. Plans NATO Nuclear Stockpile

Will Make Offer at Meeting

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States is willing to set up a nuclear arms stockpile in Europe for its North Atlantic Treaty allies.

It plans to make the offer at the forthcoming meeting of Western allies in Paris. The meeting will be attended by President Eisenhower and other chiefs-of-government.

Under tentative thinking, the weapons would be placed under the jurisdiction of Gen. Lauris Norstad, who has the dual role of commanding both U.S. forces in Europe and NATO forces.

By this handling, the administration believes, there would be no violation of a congressional act forbidding the turn-over of U.S. nuclear weapons to foreign nations in peacetime.

Close to Allies

In case all-out war developed, the weapons would be close to NATO allies and President Eisenhower presumably would order them distributed to NATO forces immediately.

The idea of a NATO nuclear stockpile and other thoughts for strengthening the Atlantic alliance were discussed Wednesday at an extraordinary meeting of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and several former Truman administration officials who worked on NATO matters.

One conferee was Paul H. Nitze, director of the Statt Department's policy planning staff under Dean Acheson, and another was Frank Pace Jr., Army secretary during part of President Truman's administration.

Dulles invited the group to the conference because he wanted a "fresh approach" to the problem of strengthening NATO. He hoped to get help from persons outside government who are not bogged down by day to day details of government operations.

More 'Whatniks' Are Reported in Nation

By UNITED PRESS

A virtual shower of flying object reports swamped authorities across the nation today, and official skepticism over the "whatniks" mounted in proportion.

The current flurry of unidentified flying object sightings began during the weekend and has been picking up steam since.

Sky gazers described the objects as appearing in many colors and in shapes ranging from a "meat platter" to "the open end of a bucket." Some of the objects zoom about, others hover overhead and kill automobile engines and lights.

Two persons, one an ex-convict in Nebraska and the other a Tennessee schoolboy, insist they have seen space ships manned by German-speaking men and women land. The boy said one of the spacemen tried to kidnap his dog.

Scientists Sceptical

Scientists, however, were cool to most of the reports. They said many of them stemmed from sightings of bright stars and planets, cloud and weather mirages, the aurora borealis, tricks of vision and, perhaps, a touch of hysteria brought on by Russia's Sputniks.

Dr. Donald H. Menzel, director of the Harvard College of Astronomy, dismissed most of the sightings as "another flying saucer scare."

A Chicago scientist pointed out the reports, which have ranged from the Fiji Islands to Italy, all have come from the free world while no such objects have been sighted in Iron Curtain countries.

Air Force officials investigated some of the stranger sightings.

But a spokesman at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio, observed that of the thousands of flying saucer reports checked out in the past 10 years, only about three per cent of them still are in the "unknown file."

Could be Identified

And those three per cent probably could be identified, the spokesman said, if more information about them could be learned.

The spokesman, a top official of the Air Technical Intelligence Center, also threw cold water on the reports by stating that not one bit of physical evidence of flying saucers has ever been found by the Air Force in checking out 5,700 sightings in the past 10 years.

He said preliminary studies of some of the current mystery sightings indicate the lights may have stemmed from "cloud ceiling light."

A Naval astronomer said a rash of "whatnik" sightings along the Eastern Seaboard Wednesday night was the aurora borealis, or northern lights. The lights, described as "reddish objects" were seen as far south as Georgia. Astronomer Sylvan Bestul in Washington said it was "unusual" to have such a brilliant display that far south.

on the basis of organizational strength alone is doomed to defeat." PFL President Joseph A. McDonough said. "We want to give renewed emphasis to the significance of the process by which these successful candidates have triumphed, and the responsibility for service to the people which such a selection embodies."

Republicans won the two special elections for Congress and a state legislative seat, in normally GOP districts. They held on to eight mayoralties, but dropped six others to the Democrats.

Bloom said the Republicans made "outstanding showings" in Montgomery, Bucks, Lehigh, Chester and Delaware counties; elected Republican candidates in Erie and returned Sharon and Mercer County "to the Republican fold."

Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh firmed up his already potent influence in Democratic state politics by smashing through to an unprecedented fourth term in City Hall. Lawrence will play a major role in the party's selection of a statewide ticket next year.

Voters in Scranton, the state's third largest city, also gave a fourth-term victory to Mayor James T. Hanlon.

Although the mayoralty was not an issue in Philadelphia, Democrats made a clean sweep of all other City Hall offices at stake.

Capture Mayoralty Posts

The Democrats took mayoralty offices from the GOP in the third-class cities of Butler, Connellsville, Corry, Lancaster, Meadville and Pottsville, while retaining those posts in Beaver Falls, Bethlehem, Clairton, Jeannette, McKeesport, Monessen and New Kensington.

Republicans held on to the mayor's office in Duquesne, Franklin, Greensburg, Hazleton, Nanticoke, Pittston, Shamokin and Sunbury.

The GOP was jolted by the upset victory of securities salesman Thomas J. Monaghan who was elected the first Democratic mayor of Lancaster in 24 years. Monaghan led his ticket to a sweep of local offices over the slate backed by state Sen. G. Graybill Diehm, a long-time power in state Republican circles.

In Butler and Pottsville the Democrats won the mayoralties for the first time in 40 years.

Of the 50 cities in Pennsylvania, the Democrats will go into next year's statewide election campaigns with 29 mayors, compared to 21 Republicans.

Republican state Rep. John A. Lafore Jr. will move into Congress next January by virtue of his victory over Democrat Glenn W. Preston in a special election to fill the one year remaining of the term of former Cong. Samuel K. McConnell Jr., Wynnewood Republican who resigned earlier this year.

In the other special election, Joseph R. Holliday, Blair County GOP chairman, defeated Democrat J. Richard Hartman for the county's 2d Legislative District seat left vacant by the death of the late Rep. Daniel H. Erb. The term expires in December, 1958.

(How did Russia beat the United States in the race to space? Why were we left behind in developing the intercontinental missile?. The United Press put the question to its London bureau and to its experts in Washington. This is the first of two dispatches giving their replies.)

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UP)—Aesop wrote a fable about a hare and a tortoise. It was true 2,500 years ago and it is just as true today. There are two satellites whirling around in space to prove it.

The United States is the hare of this story. Russia the tortoise.

In 1947 the Rand Corporation produced for the U.S. Defense Department a brilliant study of the possibility of breaking into space. Outside of the dreams of German rocket pioneers, this was the first scientific verdict anywhere in the world that the age of space travel was at hand.

A year later, Secretary of Defense James Forrestal announced what he called "the earth satellite vehicle program." Mark the date well—Dec. 30, 1948.

Expected 1955 Launching

In the opinion of the world's most authoritative rocket experts from East and West, gathered last month in Barcelona, Spain, at the International Astronautical Congress, the United States should have been able to breach the skies and have launched a satellite by 1955 — or even a year or two earlier.

It is highly likely that the Soviet Union started at about the same time on a rocket program of its own and may have had available much of the same information — both nations leaning heavily on a nucleus of former German rocket men.

The odds at that time were all on America. Russia had hardly recovered from a war that killed millions and devastated her land. The United States had available an efficient military - scientific organization which had accomplished world - shaking feats in nuclear fields.

But one thing Russia had to herself—singleness of purpose. There were two things Russia was vitally interested in in 1947—a hydrogen bomb and rockets.

Because it was a dictatorship, the Soviet was able to order concentration on those two programs and shunt aside the demand for consumer goods. It assembled an advisory board of scientists to which the actual workers and planners of the two projects could apply for help and advice.

Round Up Germans

Experts in West Germany say that the Russians rounded up the amazing total of 6,000 German workers on rocket projects at the V1 and V2 base at Peenemuende and elsewhere. They moved them all to Russia with their families—20,000 persons in all.

For the next five years, young Soviet scientists worked daily beside them in the laboratories, picking German brains of all information. Then the Russians went on from there.

In the meantime there was a sorry story to tell in the United States as I heard it from famous scientists at Barcelona before silence was clamped on.

When the war ended, Maj. Gen. Holger Toftoy of Redstone Arsenal, then a colonel, tried to round up as many German rocket scientists as possible for the United States. He received permission to bring back only about 100 because of strong anti-Nazi feeling.

But most of them were top men and, with German guidance, the Army began a missile program. By September 1954 they were able to inform superiors that they could orbit a satellite in less than a year. Still gathering dust in an Alabama warehouse are the satellites they thought would be, by now, circling the earth.

No Go-Ahead But Committee

Instead of a go-ahead, the Army got a committee. It considered the satellite programs of the Army and Navy and—to the astonishment of rocket experts worldwide—awarded the International Geophysical Year satellite program to the Navy which, in 1955, began on this new project.

Americans at Barcelona said top levels in the United States took the view that there was no hurry, no race and when we launched a satellite it was to be a real, gleaming, gadget-crammed, hundred per cent scientific vehicle. Said one scientist:

"It was just as if Columbus had said he wouldn't sail in that little boat—he wanted the Queen Mary."

So while the Russian tortoise crawled along, the American rabbit was floundering in a quicksand of interservice rivalry and industrial feuds. A dozen electronics and engineering firms lobbied for their own ideas with the Army, Navy and Air Force.

new scientific achievement to take away some of the propaganda edge gained by Russia with its two Sputniks.

Rep. Walter Rogers (D-Tex.) said the President should "let us know what the score is. . .if we have slipped behind the Russians, the sooner we know it, the better.

Among Republicans, 10 first-term GOP House members sent a telegram to the President saying: "The people want and must have the facts about our missile program and the effect the Russian achievements have on our national security."

Ask Ike to Give Facts

They called on the Chief Executive to lay the facts "on the line regardless of how serious or unpleasant these facts may be."

Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.) commented that "the time is past when the President can get by with generalities." He said Eisenhower should "tell the people what we are up against and tre sacrifices we are going to have to make."

A similar view was taken by House Speaker Sam Rayburn. He said in a statement issued from his Bonham, Tex., home Wednesday that Americans are "troubled and distressed" by recent world events and "feel certain that Russia has taken the leadership in science and especially in the ballistic missile field."

Eisenhower decided to make his address, to be entitled "Science and Security," tonight and from the White House instead of Nov. 13 in Oklahoma City as originally scheduled.

PUC Okays Building Of County Bridge

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission has authorized the construction of a new four-lane bridge to carry the Greensburg by-pass over Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at South Greensburg at an estimated $876,000 cost.

The commission ordered the state Highways Department to complete the bridge by Dec. 1, 1959.

of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., predicted that either Russia or the United States would launch a subsatellite to circle the moon within a very few years.

One of Britain's top scientists differed with the predictions. He was Prof. Richard V. Wooley, Britain's astronomer royal and head of the Royal Greenwich observatory.

"Why keep on filling kids' minds with nonsense?" he asked. "getting to the moon just isn't a feasible project in the near future."

Moscow Radio, quoting the "Soviet Weekly," said Russia will launch several more Sputniks within the next year, apparently in connection with the geophysical year which ends in December, 1958.

In London Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express reported the Russians had prepared a new satellite weighing more than a ton, or twice the weight of Sputnik II, and that a dog had been trained in preparation for becoming another martyr to science.

THE RAINS CAME—It started to rain in Pasadena, Calif., and, despite pleas from cameramen for "just one more," the 75 girls seeking the title of Queen of the 1958 Tournament of Roses broke for their hotel.

New Border Tension Reported in Syria

By UNITED PRESS

Israeli laborers and engineers returned today to the demilitarized zone adjacent to the Syrian frontier despite new border tension in which one Israeli was killed and another wounded by Syrian gunfire.

The incident occurred Wednesday along the Wadi Tawfik, where the Israelis are digging what they say is a drainage canal to channel perennial flood waters into the river Yarmuk.

Damascus Radio charged the Israelis with starting it but said the incident lasted only four minutes.

The Syrians also charged that Israel, as well as Turkey to the north, was massing troops on the Syrian border.

In Moscow, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, the new Soviet defense minister, kept alive the steady drumbeat of Soviet propaganda picturing the Russians as the friends of the Arabs.

"The enemies of peace are scheming new adventures in the Middle East," he told army troops massed in Red Square for the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Despite the belligerent words, U.S. Vice Adm. Robert P. Briscoe said he did not think the Soviet Union was preparing for an attack anywhere in the near future "because they are not ready for it."

In Cairo, there were increasing signs that Egypt wanted better relations with the West. A French-owned airliner, the first from either Britain or France since the Suez invasion last year, landed at Cairo Airport Wednesday.

The British Overseas Airways Corp. has permission to resume operations in Egypt but has not yet done so. Air France still is dickering with the Egyptians.

sky said. "The army and navy closely rallied around the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and its Leninist Central Committee will continue to live up to the trust of the Soviet people and stand guard over the gains of the October revolution."

Malinovsky reiterated the month old charges of Western plots against Syria with "Turkey as their tool" and said the Soviets condemned this "interference of imperialists in the Mideast and sympathize with the people struggling for their independence."

for Rial and 2,375 for Pershing.

New Kensington, which once ranked with Monessen as a Democratic stronghold, slipped badly from the machine's standpoint in the judicial contest. Weiss was the low Domecrat there, and he had a majority of fewer than 1,000 over Rial.

A new and aggressive Republican organization, sparked by County Commissioner Smith McKee Jr. is giving the New Kensington Democrats a harder time every election. This throws more of the burden on Monessen Democrats, who have no Republican organization to bother them and an eight-to-one registration majority.

Hempfield Twp., biggest in the county, virtually surrounds Greensburg and is an active political battleground.

Judge Bauer carried Hempfield with 4,349. But Rial, who lives in the township, came in second with a strong 3,973, followed by Weiss with 3,810. Pershing had 3,788 and Sculco, 3,561. That made a scrambled horse race.

'Buddy' Is Power

This analysis shows clearly where the Democratic power lies in Westmoreland County. It also shows why Republicans and Democrats regard "Buddy" Turner as the No. 1 politician of the county, the man who, in close contest, must deliver what's necessary.

Observers agree that the Westmoreland courthouse machine is one of the strongest in Pennsylvania in either party. But a close look at the figures shows that the Republicans, when they make a serious effort as they did in the judgeship contest, can make a race of it. Just about everywhere, that is, except in the Monessen-Rostraver district and in Arnold and Jeannette.

If county Republicans ever decide to go into business seriously again, they will find their main problems in these few areas.

Big Manhunt for Police Slayer

Believed To Be in Kentucky

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UP)—A fast-moving suspect in the brutal slaying of two North Carolina state troopers kept police throughout the South on the jump today. The latest phase of the gigantic manhunt was centered in the hills of eastern Kentucky where the killer may have been injured in a wreck.

Garrard County (Ky) Sheriff L. D. Daniel said a car was found early today in the Lancaster, Ky. area.

"Our men and state police are out looking, but nothing is known yet," he said

At Frankfort, Ky., state Public Safety Commissioner Don S Sturgill confirmed that a frantic search was underway and a "maximum effort", was being made to find the suspect.

"All police personnel across the state have been alerted that the fellow might be in Kentucky," he said.

The search for a swarthy escaped convict, chief suspect in the Tuesday double killing, also turned to the Chattanooga area with discovery Wednesday night of a 1957 Oldsmobile, packed with guns and ammunition.

Another Car Stolen

Early today a 1957 Chrysler, cloud white and capable of speeds of more than 100 miles an hour, was stolen here Police, armed with riot guns and ready to shoot to kill, manned road blocks.

But North Carolina state police reported at mid-morning that the new escape car had been found wrecked and abandoned near Lancaster, Ky. It was involved in a collision with another car.

Patrol officials said the suspect was believed to have fled on foot and was trying to commandeer another getaway car.

The hunt had turned earlier from North Carolina to the Tennessee-Georgia border area after a car, considered "almost certain" to be the 1957 Oldsmobile the slayer was using, was found abandoned and loaded with weapons, on a Chattanooga Street.

Killed in Cold Blood

The North Carolina troopers were killed in cold blood, one when he stopped a car occupied by a swarthy white man and a Negro for a routine check and the other during a highway chase a short time later.

Robert Lee Terry, the Negro hitchhiker who leaped from the gunman's car as he blazed away at the first trooper at a routine road check in Rockingham, N.C., Tuesday, was to be brought here to identify the abandoned car.

Terry's Bible was an important clue in the case. Terry, a lay preacher, said he left the Bible on the back seat of the car. Chattanooga authorities said they had not found the Bible in the car.

Police who went through the vehicle found four .22 caliber pistols, a .44 caliber magnum revolver, a .45 caliber Colt revolver, a 30-30 rifle and 2,000 rounds of ammunition.

The loot and the Oldsmobile may have been stolen in Pennsylvania. The car bore Pennsylvania license plate 28NN but had North Carolina plates inside. The Pennsylvania license was reported stolen last Monday night from a car owned by Joseph Badyak Jr., at Carrollton, Pa., about 15 miles north of Johnstown.

Within hours of the tag theft, the Bach hardware store at Barnesboro, Pa., five miles away, was robbed of seven pistols, three rifles and a large store of ammunition.

The identity of the killer was unknown, but he was believed to be from the New York or Pennsylvania area.

WON'T TELL — Alleged union buster Nathan Shefferman of Chicago wipes his face in Washington as he refuses to tell Senate rackets probers whether he gave them false information earlier this year. Later committee chairman John McClellan (D), Arkansas, charged American workers have been victimized by an "unscrupulous" combine of "dishonest" management, union bosses and labor management consultants.

Company D Man Returns After Six Month Tour

Pvt Lewis T. Indof, Belle Vernon R.D 2 has returned to Monessen's Company D of the National Guard after six months of active duty with the U.S. Army.

Private Indof, a graduate of California State Teachers College, is the first Company D man to participate fully in the comparatively new six-month program.

By volunteering for active duty, Private Indof has reduced his reserve obligation to four years. He may also devote his time now to civilian pursuits with no further obligation as far as active duty is concerned.

Several other Company D men are also taking part in this program.

Capt. Harry B. Davis, commanding officer of Company D, said the training received by Private Indof "will greatly assist him in being eligible for future promotions in the National Guard."

During his active duty, most of which was at Fort Jackson, Ky., Private Indof participated in tactical bivouacs and engaged in several night problems, including an attack on an enemy outpost.

Three Persons Guess 11 of 12 In Grid Contest

Three persons guessed 11 of 12 winners in The Daily Independent football contest last week.

Under contest rules, the first place prize money of $15 went to Cliff Learnard Jr., of 112 Pennsylvania Blvd., Monessen. He came closest to picking the highest score by a winning team.

Learnard selected 30 points. The correct total was 31.

Also guessing 11 winners were Mrs. Agnes Mahalko, 1072 Alexander Ave., Monessen, and Bernie Adamson, Belle Vernon R.D. 3. They shared second and third place money since each picked 42 points as the highest winning total.

Learnard and Mrs. Mahalko both missed the Pitt-Syracuse game. Adamson's only mistake was the Navy-Notre Dame contest.

Pleads not Guilty in California Slaying

Orville Kittle, California, pleaded not guilty yesterday in Washington County court to a charge of murdering his nephew in a scuffle over a gun last August.

His trial is scheduled to begin next Tuesday.

Kittle also pleaded not guilty to a burgarly and larceny charge, and an armed robbery charge, all allegedly a part of a series of events which led to the shooting of his nephew George Wayne Lesko, Cleveland, near California.

Judge George T. Cummins, who heard the plea, turned down a request by one of Kittle's court-appointed attorneys that the defense be permitted to inspect statements of witnesses purportedly held by the district attorney's office.

Sanford Finder, representing Kittle, argued that trial for murder places Kittle's life in jeopardy. He said the defendant should be allowed to see the statements to properly prepare a defense and to see if subsequent testimony is the same as statements already allegedly in possession of the district attorney.

The district attorney's office, represented by Thomas J. Terputac, objected to the petition by Finder and Judge Cummins concurred.

"Until the appellate court hands down a opinion in a matter of this kind. . . .I'm going to refuse to grant such petitions. . ." the court said.

Judge Cummins had previously turned down a petition on behalf of Kittle to set bond for the defendant's freedom.

Kittle is charged with firing a shot from a police officer's gun last August that killed his nephew on Route 88 near California borough and of stealing a California borough police car to flee the scene.

Gets Jail Term For 'Obscene' Telephone Calls

A husky Burgettstown feed store employe was sentenced to a year in jail yesterday after confessing to a series of "obscene" telephone calls.

The defendant, 23-year-old James Blaine Webster, collapsed in Washington County court after Judge George T. Cummins pronounced the sentence. He was permitted to rest before being taken away to jail.

Judge Cummins warned that other similar offenders would be dealt with "severely" by the court.

Webster was accused of calling a 60 year old Burgettstown woman, making immoral proposals over the telephone. Police said he was trapped in August when the victim, acting on their advice, accepted a "date." Webster was arrested when he showed up.

The district attorney's office said similar cases are under investigation and advised Judge Cummins that the problem is "serious."

Bell Telephone Co. personnel helped to track down Webster, employing an electronic tracing device.

Lloyd Amato Is First Lieutenant

Lloyd L. Amato, machine gun platoon leader in Monessen's Company D of the National Guard, has been promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant.

Capt. Harry B. Davis, commanding officer of Company D, announced the promotion today and presented Lieutenant Amato with his bars.

Lieutenant Amato lives at 212 Grove Ave., Belle Vernon. He enlisted in Company D as a private in 1948 and went on active duty as a sergeant when the Pennsylvania National Guard was federalized at the outbreak of the Korean conflict.

Charleroi Firemen Collect $60,000

Charleroi firemen reported today that they already collected $60,000 for their proposed new fire hall.

The firemen hope to raise $100,000 through a public subscription. Of the total collected to date, more than $44,000 was contributed by clubs, organizations, industry and business. A house-to-house campaign has produced $15,000 more.

The proposed fire hall will cost about $200,000. Approximately half of the cost will be financed through firemen's activities.

Attorney Charged with Aiding in Tax Evasion

ERIE, Pa. (UP)—Samuel J. Brill, Bradford attorney, went on trial in Federal Court here Wednesday on nine counts charging him with preparing false income tax returns for Zippo Manufacturing Company, of Bradford, and its president.

Brill, former assistant secretary and accountant for the Zippo firm, was not charged with income tax evasion. Three counts charged understatement of corporate net income, three charged understatement on the joint returns filed by George Blaisdell, president of Zippo, and his wife, and three charged overstatement of corporate deductions.

Brill had prepared company tax statements and also helped in the filing of the Blaisdells' joint returns.

Asst. U.S. Atty. John Gavin told the court that improvements made on four structures in Bradford had been entered "illegally" in the corporate books of the Zippo firm and deducted from the corporate net income.

Gavin said two of the structures were the private homes of Mrs. Harriet Wick and Mrs. Sarah Duke, both daughters of Blaisdell, the third was Blaisdell's home and the fourth was the Zira Research Laboratories building, operated separately from the Zippo plant.

Brill was represented by attorneys Leonard Boreman and Kalman Goldring, both of Pittsburgh.

The trial, before Judge Herbert P. Sorg, was expected to last about two weeks.

Washington County Judge Wants School For Election Officials

A Washington County jurist today suggested "a school or training session for judges of election" to insure against voting irregularities.

Judge George T. Cummins made the unusual suggestion after a blistering complaint in which he charged that yesterday's election was the "worst" in his experience.

Said Judge Cummins:

"It was the worst election in the county in my experience from the standpoint of failure of local election officials to understand and interpret the laws and for constables and other responsible persons to enforce election laws."

The Judge said he was in favor of immediate action by the County Commissioners to set up some sort of school for election officials. He said if this could not be done legally under the current laws, then he was in favor of some enabling legislation.

Many Complaints

Judge Cummins said he was harrassed constantly on election day with a variety of complaints and requests for interpretations of the law.

"It's pathetic, some of the things they ask," he said.

The Judge pointed out that the apparent trend to sticker and write-in campaigns probably had something to do with many of the misunderstandings.

He even pointed out that in some cases it could prove highly embarrassing to the court if, after some advice were given by telephone the particular election were contested in his court. He added that most of the calls were expensive collect items that cost the county money.

Judge Cummins said that failure of local election officials to understand and enforce the election code led to permitting too many watchers in polling places, failure of constables and deputies to keep unauthorized persons and activities away from the polls, permitted passing out stickers at the polling places.

The judge said he was in favor of an education session with judges of elections probably prior to the primary election each year when some qualified person could instruct the judges and answer all questions.

He said it was inadequate to throw a book of instructions into a ballot box for the judge of election and expect the judge of election to interpret all the rules and regulations properly without some guidance.

Mediocrity Wins In Westmoreland

THE RETURNS from Tuesday's election tell nothing about political conditions in Westmoreland County that we did not already know.

They confirm that the Democratic courthouse machine is a formidable instrument directed by men highly skilled in what is called "practical" politics.

They confirm that the Republican organization is a nonentity whose impotence makes it next to impossible to elect even the best qualified candidates against obviously unqualified candidates.

And the returns show that there is a large body of independent voters in Westmoreland County, enough in the judicial contest to cut a 51,000 registration majority down to less than 9,000.

The returns do not change the opinions expressed in this column during the judgeship campaign. We said there was a grave danger that Westmoreland County's common pleas court would become a political arm of the courthouse machine if all three of the Democratic judicial candidates were elected.

We are much afraid that that is exactly what has happened. The records of the three successful candidates and the nature of the support which elected them on Tuesday makes it almost inevitable.

THE EVIL of political machines has always been that, as their power continues and grows, they feel less and less necessity for putting competent candidates on their tickets. Mediocrity, not excellence, becomes the rule.

We have just had another demonstration of this historical truth in the Westmoreland County judicial contest. The sheer power of the courthouse machine enabled it to defeat one of the best qualified candidates for judge this county will ever see — Avra N. Pershing Jr. And to do it with candidates who, by any professional standard of comparison, are not qualified to carry his briefcase.

This is democracy gone haywire. Project this across our nation and the world struggle for the survival of representative government is lost.

The future of democracy is not guaranteed. Tough and resilient though it has shown itself to be, we do not think it can endure if the individual citizen will not practice discrimination and personal judgment in the choice of public officials. The founders of this country never contemplated such a thing as the "straight ticket."

THE PEOPLE of Westmoreland County must wake up. By not choosing their public officials, even the judges of their courts, with more consideration for qualifications, they are inviting the mediocrity that could be fatal to everything America stands for.

The struggle for the survival of free institutions will not be waged only between the continents or in outer space. It must be won also in the courthouses and precincts of America by citizens exercising their rights with intelligence and satisfied with nothing but the ablest leadership they can find.

A Fine Decision

THE PEOPLE of Monessen are to be congratulated on the overwhelming five-to-one approval which they gave to the $200,000 public library bond issue.

We are confident that this is a decision of which they will become increasingly proud as the project materializes and the community begins to enjoy the benefits of adequate library service.

Here is still further assurance, it seems to us, that our people are determined to have a better city in the broadest sense of that expression. Any well considered plan to advance that ambition which is adequately explained to them can count upon a sympathetic reception, even though it may cost a substantial amount of money.

A community in this frame of mind is going places.

Vote of Confidence

MAYOR Hugo J. Parente of Monessen is undoubtedly entitled to feel that he has received a vote of confidence. We congratulate him and wish him well.

We hope he also feels that he and the other members of council received a mandate to work harder than ever at the business of making Monessen a better place to live, to rear families and to do business.

Some fine plans are afoot along this line, plans to which the Mayor has been making substantial contributions.

The large vote giving Mr. Parente an unprecedented fourth term signifies to us that the people of Monessen want community progress to continue.

Truman Talks Politics in California

By DREW PEARSON

LOS ANGELES — Harry Truman bounced all over Los Angeles just at the time the Republicans pulled what the Democrats called their "Khrushchev purge of Zhukov act" — in other words, their purge of Gov. Goodwin Knight. He went out to Disneyland to get a little practice in being a grandfather even though it will be many months before his Dennis gets out of diapers. And he spent some time advising fellow Democrats how to win the next election.

Mr. Pearson

To a very select group of friends he even discussed the Little Rock crisis and the firing of Gen Douglas MacArthur.

"I called in two men before I fired MacArthur — Dean Acheson and Gen. George Marshall — and asked their advice," he said. "Dean Acheson said MacArthur should have been fired long ago.

"But Marshall said: 'You should fire him, but he's got millions of friends. There would be a very bad public reaction.'

"So I told Marshall: 'George, you go out between now and tomorrow afternoon and talk to people — all kinds of people. And you come back here tomorrow afternoon and tell me what you think.'"

The next day, Truman said, General Marshall came back and reported: "Mr. President, you should have fired him long before this. The people will support you."

Musing about the aftermaths of his firing of General MacArthur, Truman continued, "I don't pretend to be as great, but two other Presidents faced the same problem with generals of the Army.

"There was Abraham Lincoln who had to fire three generals; and there was McKinley who had to fire an officer during the Spanish American War. He was very popular, but McKinley fired him anyway.

"He had to, if he was going to keep the respect of the nation."

Lesson in Politics

Pat Brown, California attorney general who is running for governor against Sen. Bill Knowland, Republican, asked Truman whether he knew Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas.

"I know him, and I've thought highly of him," replied the former President, "but someone sold him a wrong bill of goods. If the same thing had happened while I was in the White House, I would have stopped it like this."

He snapped his fingers.

When Brown asked Truman for advice on running his campaign for governor, Truman delivered a lecture on politics which would have been a lesson for any candidate, whether for city commissioners or vice president.

"You've got to conduct this campaign," he said, referring to the race for governor of California, "as if it was a presidential campaign. No state today is more vital than California. We've got to win."

Truman then advised Brown to get organized right down to the precinct workers. "Make sure you have clerks at every poll," he added. "Don't let 'em steal any votes away from him."

"And never mention your opponent's name," he cautioned. That just gives him publicity. Attack what he stands for, but don't mention him by name."

Brown said one of the finest things he intended to do was invite Mr. Truman to come out and tour the state with him in 1958. Some observers claim that Truman did little speaking for Adlai Stevenson because Stevenson didn't ask him.

"I'm going to consider you my chief campaign manager," Brown told him.

Knowland's Trump Cards

Bill Knowland has a couple of trump cards up his sleeve in his race for governor of California and beyond it to the White House — if he makes the first hurdle. One is that he has an arrangement with Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas to take his rackets committee out to California for a full-dress probe of west coast labor.

Knowland has been for the "right to work" bill which Gov. Knight has opposed. In his race for governor, therefore, the labor vote is expected to go for the Democrat, Pat Brown, and against Knowland.

However, Knowland will play down his former advocacy of the right-to-work bill and will campaign on an issue of "democracy in labor unions." He will advocate the right of labor to elect their own leaders, and will demand protection for welfare funds. This is generally popular with labor and should win even Knowland some labor votes.

The California attorney general's office is taking a look at the Knight withdrawal in favor of Sen. Knowland to see if any "pecuniary or other consideration" was involved. If so, it might be illegal.

Today and Tomorrow—

Eisenhower Fumbles Civil Rights

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Twice during his press conference last week, the President was asked questions on the subject of integration and civil rights. The first question had to do with Little Rock and the second with his appointments, which have not yet been made, to the Civil Rights Commission. This is the Commission that was authorized by Congress in the bill passed at the end of August.

Mr. Lippmann

The President said that in Little Rock the situation "seems to improve daily" and "I most devoutly hope and pray that we soon can be confident enough of the situation that we can remove all federal forces."

In his comments on the Civil Rights Commission there was no suggestion that in his mind there will be any close connection between the Commission, when it is appointed, and the policy of the federal government in dealing with a situation like that in Little Rock.

How Can He Know?

This indicates, I hope wrongly, that the President and the administration are not at work trying to form an orderly national policy but are improvising as one aspect or another of the enormous problem forces itself upon their attention. How, for example, is he going to know that he should be confident that he can remove all federal forces from Arkansas? One would suppose that he would look to the Civil Rights Commission, if it had been set up in operation, to advise him.

It can perhaps be argued that on a narrow construction of the law, the Commission is not supposed to have the responsiblity and duty of advising the President and the Department of Justice in specific situations like that at Little Rock. On the other hand, the President can, if I read the law correctly, take a broad view of it and especially of that part which says that the Commission shall "appraise the laws and policies of the federal government with respect to equal protection of the laws under the Constitution."

If it is not to be the Commission which advises him in a situation like Little Rock, who is it to be? Is it to be the Department of Justice or is it to be some anonymous assistant on the White House staff? The President must begin to feel by this time that, while Gov. Faubus had put down a challenge which had to be met, the administration's role in the whole affair was not wisely conceived and well planned.

Confusion at Newport

For example, only confusion was produced by his meeting with Gov. Faubus at Newport, and never since then has the President succeeded in making the country understand precisely what was the issue — namely, the order the Governor gave to the Arkansas National Guard — which required federal intervention. Moreover, the character of the intervention was surely unnecessarily clumsy and provocative. Was it necessary to send the crack troops of the airborne division with their bayonets fixed, or would it have been wiser to deputize federal marshals, or even to send a detachment of military police carrying policemen's clubs?

These catch-as-catch-can methods will not do in handling so and so explosive a problem. The President needs a continuing body of advisors, whose main business in life it is to plan the role to be played by the federal government in the field of civil rights. Surely, it is within the terms of the law that the new Civil Rights Commission should be used as a policy-forming organ of the federal government in the field of civil rights.

Two months have passed since the law was enacted, and during these two months we have had Little Rock and all its consequences and implications. But there is as yet no Commission. We know that the President has been finding it difficult to get acceptances from the men he has wanted to appoint.

Seeks 'Thoughtful' People

Judging by what he said at his press conference last week, I wonder whether a good part of this difficulty in finding men does not come from his own contradictory ideas about what kind of men he is looking for. He wants "people of thoughtful mien and type whose reputation is that of being a judicial turn of mind, watching these things and deciding what to do." He wants also to "have represented on the Commission all types of thinking." He wants "to get a spectrum of American opinion on this matter."

Is it any wonder that it has been hard for him to appoint a Commission? On the one hand, he wants men of a judicial turn of mind. On the other hand he wants "all types of thinking." He wants a Commission which on the subject of civil rights is as judicial as, let us say, Adlai Stevenson, and he wants also to have represented the thinking of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and of Sen. Byrd of Virginia and of Gov. Griffin of Georgia.

These contradictions come from a hope, which is quite vain, that he can set up a Commission which pleases everybody. He should be looking for a Commission which is capable of formulating a coherent national policy. What he needs is a clear-headed and resolute Commission which will translate into orderly policies for the guidance of the administration what is now a chaos of law suits and court orders.

National Affairs—

Republicans Helping to Beat Themselves in '60

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Old timers may be reminded now of the very early 1930s when, to be in style, the alert politician had to clobber the President in private or in public and clobber him good.

That was back there in the Hoover administration, when depression in the United States and abroad seemed about to wreck forever the modern economies. Things were bad all over. They became especially bad for Republican office holders who were unprepared to enter private life.

Mr. Wilson

For the various ills of the community, the then President Herbert Hoover was indicted and found guilty not only by the judges and juries of the Democratic Party, but by the Republicans, as well—barring a very few who were willing to stand up and be counted in defense of a man who was being overwhelmed by events.

The Democratic findings of mismanagement against the depression time president could be and usually were discounted as partisan and, therefore, biased and perhaps self-serving. These findings were presented in the best barbed and most fascinating political prose to come out of Washington before or since.

Author of most of this Democratic invective aimed at the White House was the late Charley Michelson, a New York political writer for whom the late John J. Raskob anted up a $25,000 annual salary. That sum won and kept Michelson to the job of publicity director of the Democratic National Committee.

It was Charley Mike's special job to compose the speeches and statements with which Democratic politicos daily and hourly told the voters that President Hoover had planned it that way. The senators, congressmen and other Democratic wheels gladly uttered old Charley's stuff as their own, it being superior in grammar, syntax and thrust to anything they could compose.

The newspapers pretty generally joined the barrage until the air around the White House was filled with what Hugh (Ironpants) Johnson inelegantly was to describe later as dead cats. Newspapers, however, more often than not, are unable to deliver the votes of their readers and, as stated, the outpouring from Democratic big wigs bore the blemish of acknowledged partisanship.

The newspapers and the Democrats were joined, however, by a great many Republicans in and out of public office until scarcely was a major voice within the party raised in the defense of the man who was being demoted from the rank of public hero No. 1.

Knowing that Herbert Hoover surely would be their party's presidential candidate in 1932 the alert Republican politicos of the very early 1930s clobbered their chosen leader and clobbered him good. The Republicans helped the Democrats and the newspapers to beat the President to his knees and they beat the Republican Party flat on its back along with him. It was 20 long years before another Republican occupied the White House.

True, President Eisenhower cannot seek re-election, even if he would. But it is a political fact of life that the 1960 Republican nominee must run on the record of the Eisenhower administration. Another 20 years might seem like a long, long time.

The Woman's View—

'Housewife' Still One Of Important Positions

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Some free advice today to all those millions of women whose occupation is "just a housewife."

Take a new look around you. People in high places are beginning to recognize that most of you hold not one but several dozen jobs. So start promoting. Shed your shrinking violet complex. Discard your ironing board slouch, throw your shoulders back in pride. Brag about, don't deride, your "career."

Gay Pauley

The newest friend in the housewife's camp is Mrs. Katherine B. Oettinger, chief of the U.S. Children's Bureau, and homemaker also.

She chides all of us for looking down our noses at contributions on the stay-at-home wife . . . even suggested she should be paid, just as the 22 million women in outside jobs are reimbursed.

"So many mothers feel guilty if they do work," Mrs. Oettinger told a recent National Manpower Conference at Harriman, N.Y. "But though this is sometimes forgotten, so many feel guilty if they do not."

World's Hardest Job

The time has come for the "world to enhance the status of the homemaker," she said. "The lack of respect and recognition for one of the hardest jobs in the world is so familiar it needs no documentation."

Mrs. Oettinger told of one mother of three, who decided to take an outside job until she checked the cost of sending the children to a day care center. She found her salary would just about pay the tab. She decided not to take the job and commented, "I didn't think I was worth ANYTHING at home."

Mrs. Oettinger said perhaps the way to "enhance" the status of "just a housewife" is "the one often suggested but seldom taken seriously . . . to grant some pecuniary recognition to the mother who works IN the home."

Well, I've been counting all the jobs the housewife holds and much as I agree with Mrs. Oettinger, there is a big hitch.

Who would pay her salary? Hubby?

The family budget might cover her earnings as a domestic, at the going rate of $1 to $1.50 an hour. But foot the bill for her work as family doctor, nurse, management expert, financial whiz, fashion advisor, and you're in the big money.

High Salary For Mrs.

One home economist, Frances Sanderson of Wayne State University, Detroit estimated this week that Mrs. Housewife would qualify as a $20,000-a-year worker on the open job market.

Count the additional jobs. She is scientist (experimenting with cooking), dietitian, child psychologist, hostess, laundress, teacher, interior decorator, baby - sitter, carpenter, errand boy, and chauffeur. She is the family shopper—a job which alone would drive the average purchasing agent to resignation.

All this, and she is the patient wife, who tolerates the husband coming home at the end of the day with the comment: "Well, what have YOU done all day?"

One housewife recently answered, "Everything. Twelve times."

Maybe instead she should have handed her husband a bill.

Phil Fumble Little Down at Mouth

Ol Phil Fumble isn't exactly disheartened but he's a little down at the mouth after watching his season mark take a slight dive following a 10 right, five wrong card last week for a 70-27 overall mark of .721 . . . So, determined to up the average, here's how he sees this week's game: DUQUESNE at Monessen, Monongahela at CHARLEROI; Brownsville at UNIONTOWN; Washington at DONORA; BELLMAR at Dunbar; Rostraver at PENN JOINT; Fairchance at WEST NEWTON; PERRYOPOLIS at Masontown; North Union at SOUTH UNION; CALIFORNIA at Elizabeth; Bentleyville at ELLSWORTH; WAYNESBURG at Georges; Redstone at GERMAN; CANONSBURG at Burgettstown; Chartiers at CENTERVILLE.

Gus Brickner, the Valley's Human polar bear, will address the Belle Vernon Knights of Columbus tomorrow night, making the umpteenth time Gus has appeared before district groups to explain his close-but-unsuccessful English Channel swim and to explain in detail his plans for another try next year . . . The Charleroi Moose Club honored Gus last week for all the publicity he brought the valley last summer and he will be similarily honored by the Homestead Moose this Sunday . . . Incidentally, Gus still takes a daily dip in the Monongahela even if he has to brush aside the ice during the course of his dip . . . Quite a remarkable guy!

Breaks Featured Cougar-'Hound Tilt

Both Coach Armand Niccolai of Monessen and Rab Currie of Charleroi agreed that "breaks" played an important part in the 21-12 Cougar win last week over the Greyhounds . . . Speaking at the Charleroi Quarterback Club meeting Monday, Nick said, "We made too many mistakes and Charleroi took advantage of them." . . . He added, "I honestly felt that we had a good chance to win but you can't make the kind of mistakes we did against a Charleroi team and expect to win." . . . Currie agreed with the remarks made by Niccolai and also stated he thought the long layoffs between games hurt Monessen . . . The Hound line came in for praise (and it was supposedly a weak point of the local team) which is a pat on the back for Vince Pascarella, (who surprised with his speed for a 210-pounder), Terry Throop, Bob Pauline, Lou Gighiotti and ends George Guibourdanche and Dennis O'Toole, all of whom played a fine game. Ditto Aldrich and Allen.

Joe Bozik, the ex-Donora High star has returned to grid action for Lafayette following healing of a hair-line leg fracture early in the season and he immediately tossed two touchdown passes against Gettysburg . . . Monessen5s Wayne Cipriani had been filling in nicely for Bozik . . . That Pitt-West Virginia freshman game reported here the other day wasn' t played in Morgantown as the article from which we got the news stated, the game actually was played at Ellsworth Center where the Panther varsity practices . . . The publishing here of the Midget League scoring list shouldn't have contained surprises for local Midget fans with Eric Crabtree leading the pace followed closely by Stanley Hamlin . . . Crabtree's total climbed especially high the night he garnered five touchdowns.

Ozarks to Form Association

Disband Club for Strength

The Monessen Ozarks Club long a sports promoting club has dissolved and formed an Ozark athletic Association it was announced today by secretary John Peckyno

It was decided at a recent meeting to discontinue club membership Peckyno added and to form the association with a restricted membership

Main reason for such a move according to the secretary was to strengthen the club with active members as the former organization was beginning to operate on a shaky basis due to an overloaded inactive membership

Peckyno emphasized however, that the disbandment of the club will in no way affect the Ozarks far-flung sports program which includes a basketball tournament baseball team in the Mon Valley League and many other activities

All of the many activities will be absorbed by the new association

In fact plans are presently underway to start promoting the annual pre-season tournament which starts and ended at the completion of basketball season

Bellmar, Rostraver Play Away

Bellmar travels to Trotter tonight to battle Dunbar High School's Mules while Rostraver is at Penn Joint

The 'Canes now sporting a 3-4 record will try to get up to the 500 mark against the Dunbar Mules who show a 2-5 season chart

Rostraver will be after its first win of the season against a Penn Joint eleven which hasn't enjoyed much better luck

Against mutual foe, Bellmar Rostraver dropped a 13-0 decision while Penn Joint was swamped 26-6, which should give the Leps an edge but the Jointures have played hot and cold ball and have the ability to post high scores

Coach Bap Manzini's Hurricanes should rate a slight edge over Dunbar especially after the fine game against unbeaten South Union last week which Bellmar lost by only 6-0 and came within seven yards of winning or tying the game

Meanwhile West Newton is at home tonight to a rugged Fairchance eleven in what could be a 'humdinger" of a ball-game, as the Hornets are no pushovers and Fairchance has one of its strongest teams in years

Frank-Lin shows eight players on the squad with the Tweardy boys, William at quarterback, John at tackle, William Kachmarick at end, Gerry Francia at fullback; Joe Mallino at center, John Popovich and Bob Beveridge at halfbacks and John Saxton at a tackle post

Chicago will be at St Louis Philadelphia at Cincinnati, and Pittsburgh at the World Champion Milwaukee Braves in the other openers

This complaint and other matters pertaining to the new schedule will have to be dealt with before the official 1958 schedule is announced in December or January

Bobo Aldrich, who started the first game and then missed the remainder of the contests until the Charleroi game last week is out for the season and Ed Allen and Vince Pascarella move back again into the top starting tackle positions

It was feared that center Lou Gighitto would be out for the remainder of the season due to injuries suffered in the Charleroi clash but he has responded to treatment and will start at center Gighiotti has been doing a fine job since replacing Tom Churan injured in the Uniontown contest

MHS Starters

Named to face the Dukes tomorrow night were George Guibourdanche and Dennis O Toole at ends Pascarella and Allen at tackles, Bob Pauline and Terry Throop at guards Gighiotti at center with Dan Barton at quarterback. Ken Bronson and Joe Karbowsky at halfbacks and Carl Rattay at fullback

The big gun in the backfield for the Dukes is Captain Mike Daniels at halfback.

Game time is 8 o'clock tomorrow night

'Mom' Also Guest At Duquesne Game

Adding to the festivities for tomorrow night's Monessen-Duquesne game, the mothers of the Greyhound players have been invited to share the honors with Dad.

It was announced yesterday that tomorrow night would be Dad's Night but it has now been changed to "Mom and Dad's Night" as local school officials feel Mom is just as proud of her gridder son as Pop.

The mothers will be presented favors and honored prior to the game following the plans announced yesterday for the fathers and will join the "men" for refreshments after the game in the Vocational School building where they will also report prior to the game.

Parker Prepping Steeler Defense For Cleveland

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers drilled on defense Wednesday as coach Buddy Parker readied his team for the game Sunday with the Cleveland Browns

A win by Pittsburgh would lift it into a first place tie with the Browns, who have lost only one game while winning five

Coach Paul Brown was expected to unleash a fierce running offense, using his star rookie, Jim my Brown Jimmy presently is third among National Football League ground gainers, having accounted for 388 yards while carrying the ball 101 times

In the previous meeting this year between the teams, Cleveland defeated Pittsburgh, 23-12 The faultless toe of Lou Groza accounted for three field goals in the game, and the Steeler line was impotent in its attempts to give protection to passer Earl Morrall

In recent games, the Steeler line has greatly improved, evidenced by the fact that Morrall now stands at the top of the league in passing yardage with 1,179 yards and completing 79 of 151 passes

"Mind if I play through?"

Kubek, Sanford Tops Rookies Of Year In AL, NL

NEW YORK (UP)—Tony Kubek, the New York Yankees "jack of all trades," and Jack Sanford, right-handed curve-ball pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies, today were named the major leagues' outstanding rookies for the 1957 season by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Kubek, who played five different positions for the Yankees this year, received 23 of the 24 votes in the balloting for the American League freshman award. The other vote went to Frank Malzone of the Red Sox, who was declared ineligible for the award because he had appeared in 27 games for Boston in 1956.

In the National League voting, Sanford finished first with 16 votes. The other votes were distributed among first baseman Ed Bouchee of the Phillies (four), pitcher Dick Drott of the Chicago Cubs (three) and outfielder Bob Hazle of the world champion Milwaukee Braves (one.).

Kubec Outfielder, Infielder

Kubek played left field, center field, shortstop, third base and second base in his first season under Casey Stengel, the Yankees' master lineup juggler. Despite all this maneuvering, he batted .297 for the American League champions.

Considered a "perfect Yankee-type player" by Stengel, Kubek would up as the club's third leading hitter (behind Mickey Mantle and Bill Skowron) in his initial major league season. He had 39 runs-batted-in and his 128 hits included 21 doubles, three triples and three homers.

Sanford, like Kubek, left his native hearth to gain fame elsewhere. He was born and raised in Wellesley, Mass., a suburb of Boston, but was turned down at a Red Sox tryout camp because he was "too small." That was in 1947. Jack then weighed only 160 pounds only 160 pounds but has since blossomed out into a six-foot, 190-pounder.

Long Road for Jack

However, unlike Kubek, Sanford traveled a long road to the majors. After being rejected by the Red Sox, the blond New Englander signed with the Phillies and was kicked around in their farm system for seven years before putting in a two-year hitch in the Army.

After receiving his discharge, Sanford appeared in three games with the Phillies near the end of the 1956 season, winning his first major league start. The 27-year-old right-hander showed up at the Phillies' camp last spring determined to make good. And he did—in a big way.

Sanford led both leagues in strikeouts with 188. He had a 19-8 won and lost record, posted an an earned - run average of 3.08, walked only 93 men in 237 innings and pitched three shutouts and 15 complete games.

Auburn U. Rates Highly in NCAA Grid Statistics

NEW YORK, (UP) — Auburn's rise to third place in the college football ratings this season was reflected today in the latest team statistics released by the NCAA service bureau.

The Plainsmen ranked first among the major colleges in total defense, allowing an average of 136.7 yards for their first six games, and also topped the "scoreboard defense" with an aggregate yield of 14 points (2.3 points per game).

Georgia Tech was second in total defense with an average of 163.5 yards allowed per contest and was followed in order by Princeton (172.5), Navy (172.6) and Oklahoma State (182.0).

Iowa led in rushing defense, limiting enemy ball carriers to 66.2 yards per game. Auburn (76.2 was second, followed by Miami (Fla.) (88.7), Arizona (Tempe) State (96.0) and Princeton (105.5).

The leading defender against passes was Georgia Tech. The Engineers have limited their opponents to only 213 yards in the air for an average of 35.5 per game. Their closest rivals were Missouri (43.4), Tulane (44.6), Florida (45.2 and Kentucky (51.9).

Frenchman Tops Mexico's Idol For Bantom Title

LOS ANGELES, (UP) — The world's bantamweight crown, possibly worth more than ever before in history, headed for France today, firmly placed on the brow of Alphonse Halimi, a pleasant-faced little French-Algerian.

Halimi, a pre-fight underdog, took the undisputed crown Wednesday night when he won a split decision from Raul Macias of Mexico and spoiled a Roman holiday for some 20,000 Mexicans at Wrigley Field.

For the victory here, Halimi collected $50,000 in cash, plus all his expenses, which totaled 22-million francs.

Macias, already a wealthy man, took home something more than $30,000, awaiting final counting on a gate of approximately $200,000, plus national-televised receipts.

If the two should meet again, the gate possibly would be somewhat less, but they possibly could draw better than $100,000 in Paris.

As for the fight itself, it couldn't be rated as a thriller. There were no knockdowns and not once was one of the battlers hurt in any way. Halimi, fighting out of a crouch, kept boring in and slamming hard lefts to the nose and ears, then lowering his sights to the midriff.

The Frenchman was landing an average of three blows to one for Macias.

Floyd Todd Tops In Page League

Floyd Todd with a 202-502 paced the Page Bowling League action at the Grand Parlors alley last night.

Match winners were Stainless, Testing, Mechanical No. 2, and Electric.

Mechanical No. 1 holds the team high single and three-game marks of 1186 and 3403. Todd holds the individual records of 257 and 622.

Standings — Stainless 21-6, Electric 18-9, Galvanize 16-11, Mechanical No. 1 — 15-12, Mechanical No. 2 — 14-13, Cold Roll, 10-17, Testing 7-20, and Supervisers 5-22.

Apodiakos Paces GAPA Bowling Action

John Apodiakos' 189-463 paced the GAPA Bowling League action last night as the Spartans and Thors posted victories.

Other top scorers were Gus Manos, George Mermigas, Coon Ranallo, Chuck Marsichi, Bob Wotkowski, and Augie Grillo.

Standings — Spartans 20-7, Zeus 17-10, Thor 14-13 and Apollo 3-24.

Record Winner Retires

HARRISBURG, Pa., (UP)—Scott Frost, winner of the 1955 Hambletonian and record money winner for a trotting stallion, has been retired to stud by owner Jim Camp of Shafter, Calif. Scott Frost earned $310,000, a record for a trotting stallion, and third best in the overall trotting roster.

Sporstmen's Corner—

Game Opener Ideal For Hunting Enthusiasts

The cottontail rabbit and ringneck pheasant hunting success was greater on October 26, opening day for farm game, than on the first day of the same season last year. Quail also were in season but, since they are not yet numerous generally, many sportsmen were content merely to work their bird dogs on the bobwhites prior to season.

It appears that many outdoorsmen had dulled the initial hunting urge by invading wooded mountain localities one week earlier, in quest of a wild turkey, grouse or squirrels. Apparently this diminished the hunting pressure in many agricultural areas when rabbits, ringnecks and quail came in season. Some hunters ignored the farm game season start and continued to try for a turkey.

By areas, the first-day survey of conditions and results was as follows: In the north-western counties the number of hunters was somewhat less than on the first day in 1956, but the total bag of pheasants and rabbits was about the same as on that comparable day. South-western Pennsylvania reported a little increase in hunting pressure, with the kill of ringnecks and rabbits higher than last year. Though the Northcentral Division is largely wooded, in the farmed areas of the southernmost counties very good rabbit and ringneck success was the rule. In the South-central Division the hunting pressure was considerably less than on opening day 1956, but the total kill of rabbits and ringnecks was nevertheless higher. In the northeast, also, there were fewer hunters afield, Divisionwide. But areas where pheasants are found carried the usual number of shooters, and their ringneck kill was reported at least as large as last year. Oddly, though the rabbits are present in better numbers than last year, the take of these animals dropped a little. In the southeast corner the hunting pressure was estimated as comparable to that on the first day last year. The rabbit kill was a little higher, while the pheasant kill showed a pleasing increase.

Perfect Weather—

Near ideal hunting weather was the rule across the state on the opening day of the farm game season. Unlike some openers in past, when "blue bird weather" prevailed, it was cool to cold this year, and rabbits were out of their dens and willing to run in most localities. Damp ground conditions also provided the best kind of scenting conditions for hunting dogs.

There was the usual number of minor to serious non-fatal hunter casualties on the first day. Fortunately no one was killed by a hunter's firearm.

The conduct of most persons afield was sportsmanlike, and the opening hour on October 26th was generally well observed. Principally, unlawful acts noted were: Hunting inside safety zones (too close to buildings); taking over the limit of game; shooting across or along highways; killing hen pheasants, other protected birds and deer; and hunting without being proper licensed.

Importantly, about one-half million persons enjoyed exceptionally good rabbit and pheasant shooting in Pennsylvania on October 26. A large number of hunters volunteered the information that this was the best opening day in years. The sportsmen returned home refreshed and happy, many of them laden with the fruit of the chase — tasty table fare in the form of wild game.

Dodger, Giant Officials Meet With PCL Moguls

NEW YORK, (UP)—Officials of the Dodgers and Giants meet in secret with the representatives of the Pacific Coast League today in an effort to settle upon satisfactory indemnity sums without going to court.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick called the meeting, and will sit in on it, but denied he would serve as arbitrator. He said he set up the meeting "at the request of the interested parties" and that they would discuss "the reorganization of the Pacific Coast League and the questions of realignment."

However, it was known that the big problem was the money to be paid the PCL for encroachment on its territory by the Brooklyn (now Los Angeles) Dodgers and New York (now San Francisco) Giants.

It was reliably reported from last week's meeting at Sacramento, Calif., that the Giants and Dodgers each offered only $50,000 to the PCL. Some PCL owners were talking of sums as high as $1-million, and have threatened law suits.

Sputnik Insurance

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, (UP)—Jittery sponsors of next year's European track and field meet aren't taking any chances on a possible financial loss. They have taken out insurance at the cost of 20,000 crowns ($4,000) against world war, Asian flu, general strike and Sputnik II. In case the meet is cancelled because of any of these catastrophes, the sponsors will receive 2.5 million crowns ($500,000).

FRANK BRIMSEK

They called him "Mr. Zero" in his rookie year with the Boston Bruins hockey club in 1938-39 when he twice turned in three straight shutouts and ran up scoreless streaks of more than 231 and 220 minutes. Frank Brimsek was an outstanding goalie until he retired from hockey in 1949-50.

Whatever happened to Frank Brimsek? Today, he is a fireman on the Fort Francis, Ohio, and Virginia, Minn., Railroad and has not put on a skate or seen a hockey game in eight years.

Pitt Game 'Big One' of Season For West Virginia Grid Fans

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A loyal crowd of 10,000 West Virginians is expected to invade Pittsburgh this week end when the Mountaineers meet Pitt in the 50th encounter of an old rivalry.

"This is the big one for West Virginia and their fans," advised Panther scout Carl De Pasqua. "They'd rather beat us than anybody else. Why, they even were yelling their 'Beat Pitt' chant against William & Mary two weeks ago."

In a series play, the University of Pittsburgh holds a heavy edge, winning 37 and losing 11, with the teams tieing only once.

Four of the WVU victories have gone down in the Mountaineers' annals as among their "ten greatest."

Both teams have proved disappointments to their followers this season. Pitt (3-4) is riding a three-game losing streak, having lost to Army, Notre Dame and Syracuse.

West Virginia was bumped by Penn State, 27-6, a week ago in what Mountaineer coach Art Lewis tabbed his squad's worst effort of the year. Their season mark is 4-2-1.

Last year, WVU lost to Pitt, 14-13, on a fumble inside their own five-yard line.

Pitt came out of last week's Syracuse upset badly battered. Definitely out of the game is center Charley Brueckman, while the team's leading ground gainer, Joe Scisly, and reserve guard Ed Michaels are doubtful.

West Virginia will be without the services of standout guard Chuck Howley, who was described by one Pitt scout as "the best collegiate guard I've ever seen." Howley suffered a jaw fracture in practice last week.

Despite injuries, however, the game should prove to be a battle.

As one veteran football observer put it:

"When the Panthers and Mountaineers get together, it's like a couple of cats meeting on a narrow fence."

SALLY'S SALLIES

"Can you tell me, dear, how you write a man out of your life politely?"

Food Superstitions Disputed by Expert

By ALFRED LEECH

CHICAGO (UP)—Thunder won't really cause milk to sour, and the mere presence of a red-haired woman near a cheese vat won't hurt the cheese.

These and other food superstitions were disputed by Col. Charles S. Lawrence, executive secretary of the Institute of Food Technologists.

"There's absolutely no rhyme or reason to some of these superstitions," Lawrence said. "but people still hold to them."

The thunder-milk idea apparently is related to the fact that warm, humid weather does increase the lactic bacteria in the air, he said, and this in turn will cause milk to sour if it is left in the open.

"But it's the lactic bacteria, not the thunder," Lawrence said.

The cheese superstition still is prevalent in some sections of the South and along the Atlantic seaboard, he said. According to the belief, if a red-haired woman tends the cheese vat, the curd will be "like loose sand and the cheese will be unfit to eat."

Along the coast of the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida and Texas, Lawrence said, many people believe that eating crabs and ice cream at the same meal is "about like taking strychnine."

In New England there is a similar superstition about milk and shell fish of any kind.

"It probably got started because the fishermen felt that dairy foods were offering too much competition," Lawrence said.

"It's obviously ridiculous because many recipes call for cooking fish dishes in milk."

Bismarck, the Iron Chancellor of Germany, believed in a superstition that killed him. He thought that meat and brandy would cure the gout, despite the fact that meat is high in proteins and gout usually is caused by an overabundance of protein in the diet.

"Bismarck used to eat a pound and a half of sausage and drink a bottle of brandy," Lawrence said. "Then his aching toes didn't ache.

"He was probably so soused he felt no pain."

37 Natives Drown In Belgian Congo

KABIMBI, Belgian Congo (UP) — Thirty - seven natives drowned Wednesday when a ferry boat capsized and sank in the Luwabula River. Eight more were missing.

Reports reaching here said the boat overturned when too many of the 90 passengers got on one side.

Piece of Ice Drops on Roof

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — A 10-pound piece of ice dropped on to the roof of a Philadelphia home Wednesday night, alarming the occupants who were watching television.

Albert Gogel, 63, and his wife, Anna, 58, (of 2028 E. Clearfield St.) said the ice broke into several pieces and scattered on the roof and street of the Kensington section of the city.

No one was harmed and little damage was done to the roof.

Several other incidents of ice falling from the sky have been reported over the state recently.

Air Service for District Studied

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board today studied recommendations to allow Northwest Airlines to provide service between Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit and Baltimore.

The recommendations were made by CAB examiner William F. Cusick.

Cusick also recommended that Capital Airlines be allowed to provide service to Miami and other Florida cities from Erie, Pa., Youngstown, Akron, Canton and Cleveland, Ohio, and Buffalo, N.Y.

Merger Hearings Are Ended

NEW YORK (UP)—A federal judge reserved decision Wednesday on the government's request to bar the proposed merger of Bethlehem Steel Corp. and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co.

Judge Edward Weinfeld ordered the Justice Department to file additional papers within 10 days and the companies to submit detailed affidavits within 24 days.

The government must file papers to buttress its motion for a summary judgment on the basis of "undisputable" facts, while the companies must submit affidavits demonstrating what they intend to prove if their plea for a trial is granted.

His order wound up hearings for the present on the legality of the merger that would weld Bethlehem, the nation's second largest steel company, and Youngstown, the fifth largest. The combination would result in a huge new enterprise with annual sales and assets exceeding $2,500,000,000.

Robert E. Bicks, Justice Department attorney, argued the intent of the companies to expand in the Midwest is completely "immaterial" because it does not detract from the fact that the merger would increase concentration in the industry.

New Competition

Attorneys for Bethlehem and Youngstown argued a merger of their firms would mean "substantial, definite and irretrievable" new competition in the Midwest.

Whitney North Seymour, attorney for Youngstown, said the merged company would be better able to "give battle to giant U.S. Steel" and help meet a "crying demand" in the Chicago area for plate and structural steel.

The companies have sworn in affidavits that if the merger is allowed, they will spend 358 million dollars to add 2,588,000 tons of steel capacity in the Midwest — mostly plate and structural. Currently, U.S. Steel produces 55 per cent and Inland Steel 25 per cent of the plate and structural in that area.

Judge Weinfeld said the issues in the case were the companies' disagreement with the government on what are relevant market areas and lines of commerce and whether the combination would substantially lessen competition.

The judge must decide whether any of the issues involve a question of fact, and if so must grant a trial and deny the motion for the summary judgement.

Flying Wrestler

CHICAGO (UP) — Mrs. Eva Litke, 57, decided 200 pounds of meat delivered to her wasn't kosher. She is suing for $75,000 for injuries she said she suffered when a wrestler was thrown into her lap.

Bethlehem Steel Withdraws Bid

WASHINGTON (UP)—Bethlehem Steel Company has virtually withdrawn as a bidder to construct an atomic-powered merchant ship at its Fore River shipyard, Quincy, Mass., the Maritime Administration said today.

The company, which had been negotiating for the contract, informed officials here that pressure of other work would preclude meeting the required construction schedule.

Chicago Man Is Questioned in Savage Slaying

BATON ROUGE La. (UP) —Police questioned a Chicago man today in connection with the savage slaying of a New Orleans church secretary during an abduction-robbery last month

Officers identified the suspect as Joseph Edward Liutkas, 37, and said they found two automatic pistols and three large knives in his car One of the knives bore bloodstains

Liutkas first denied then later admitted, that he was in New Orleans on the night of Oct. 23, when the Rev. Martin W. Hollis, 69 and his secretary, Miss Maud Lind 57, were taken on a two-hour ride of terror, investigators said.

The suspect also fits a description of the bandit given by the minister. Liutkas was given a lie detector test and the result was expected today.

The attacker held a gun on the minister and Miss Lind as they left a church meeting and forced the Rev Mr. Hollis to drive around for more than an hour Then he beat both with a pistol and slashed them with a sharp instrument

Miss Lind died of strangulation from a handkerchief shoved down her throat, according to a coroner's report, but would have died anyway from a severed jugular vein.

The minister was seriously injured but has since recovered and been released from the hospital.

Kansas Flu Outbreak Just Getting Started

By UNITED PRESS

A flu outbreak in Kansas that struck tens of thousands of persons and caused five deaths "may just be getting started," a health official warned.

The Kansas fatalities were the first reported in the Sunflower State With reports of flu deaths in other states, the new deaths gave the nation's influenza toll its sharpest rise in more than a week

A United Press tally showed that at least 590 persons have lost their lives due to Asian flu, other types of influenza, and complications of both since the outbreaks began last summer

New York Leading

Topping the nation was New York with 134 deaths, followed by Pennsylvania 99, Michigan and Ohio with 41 each, and California with 40.

Others were Iowa, 28, Illinois and Louisiana 21 each, Wisconsin 18, Nebraska and Washington 16 each, Connecticut and Minnesota 15 each, Utah 11, Colorado and Indiana 10 each, Tennessee and Hawaii 9 each, Kentucky 8 Kansas and Oklahoma 5 each, New Jersey 4 Maryland, Missouri and Oregon 3 each, North Carolina 2, and 1 each in Arizona, Maine, and the District of Columbia.

Kansas health officer Dr James Mott disclosed Wednesday that flu-caused absenteeism jumped alarmingly last week. About 24,000 persons were absent from work and school in 37 counties, he said

Extending the figure throughout the state would hike the total to more than 70,000, Mott said, and warned "we may just be getting started"

Outbreak In Joplin

In Missouri, authorities at Joplin reported a major flu outbreak had kept about 10,000 school children at home. Eleven schools were shut down, and about one-third of the students in nearby Galena, Kan., were stricken.

Among the new deaths reported Wednesday was a child at the Rainier School for Mentally Retarded Children at Seattle, Wash., the school's sixth victim.

Flu also managed to break into the Canon City State Prison in Colorado, afflicting 109 convicts In Silverton, Colo., Mayor Fiore Giacomelli issued an order prohibiting all public meetings.

Turbo-prop Plane Future in Doubt; Another Crashes

LONDON (UP)—The future of the Britannia turbo-prop airliner may be in doubt unless investigators can quickly determine the cause of the crash Wednesday of one of the "whispering giants," aircraft sources said today

Fifteen persons died when the giant four-engined transport crashed in a wood near Bristol on a proving flight

Officials of the Bristol Aircraft Co and the Ministry of Civil Aviation launched an immediate inquiry Informed sources said the investigators are working against time in an effort to find the reason for the accident.

The crash was the latest in the series which has plagued British civil aviation since World War II It came even while the Bristol Co. was under heavy fire for allegedly failing to produce Britannias fast enough to meet orders

Sixteen inches of fresh snow piled up in the mountains of southwestern Colorado, and parts of Texas today soaked up their fourth straight day of rain

The new snow Wednesday increased to 36 inches the amount of snow that has fallen in the southwestern Colorado Rockies this fall and more snow was seen for the area today.

Mostly fair skies prevailed over the Ohio Valley and East of the Appalachians with cooler temperatures in the Mid-atlantic states and parts of New England.

Colder temperatures and occasional rain are expected today in the Northern and Central Plains through the upper Mississippi Valley and upper Great Lakes.

Continued fair weather is seen for the Atlantic Seaboard and fair to partly cloudy skies are expected west of the Rockies.

Food Editors Discuss Value Of Vitamins in Bread, Milk

There is more to the Food Editors' Conference than wining, dining, breakfasting and lunching. Much as this is all enjoyed, it is the news about food questions that satisfies the appetites of newspaperwomen.

The nutritive quality of foods is never neglected, and all ears were turned to a program offered by a manufacturer of shortenings where several scientists — among them, Dr. Philip L. White, secretary, Council on Foods and Nutrition, American Medical Association, and J. R. Andre, research chemist at Proctor and Gamble — discussed the current problem of the cholesterol content of fats and its influence on heart disease.

This was also one of the many questions fired at Dr. Robert S. Harris, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, by Norman Ross, the well-known Chicago interviewer. All the scientists agreed there are many causes and it has not been proven as yet that cholesterol is a factor. The research work done by scientists on this subject is just one of the many experiments going on in many nutrition laboratories.

Among the many questions asked Dr. Harris by Norman Ross was one about the nutritive value of bread, which is the basis of diet in so many countries of the world. According to Dr. Harris, this is the backbone of the United States diet. Milk and bread are the centers. The enrichment of our favorite white bread with the vitamins removed in milling has shown there is not the urgency for the use of green and yellow vegetables that there was formerly.

In a comparative test of national breads, the first prize went to Finland and the second to the enriched bread of the United States.

Tasty Recipe

TEA DOUGHNUTS

4 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon or allspice
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs or 4 egg yolks, well beaten
1 cup milk

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt, and spices. Cream shortening, add sugar slowly, and cream until fluffy. Stir in well-beaten eggs. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, stirring well after each addition. Roll dough ½-inch thick on lightly floured board and cut doughnuts with very small biscuit cutter or doughnut cutter. Fry in deep, hot fat (375 degrees F.) until golden brown, turning once. Drain on soft paper and sprinkle with mixed cinnamon and sugar. Yield, 6 dozen.

Note: The use of egg yolks rather than whole eggs in the above recipe produces a particularly tender doughnut.

SUNDAY NIGHT CHEESE

6¼-inch slices dry bread
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon paprika
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 cups (½ pound) grated cheese

Remove crusts from bread. Butter bread. Line sides and bottom of shallow 1½-quart casserole with bread, butter side down, cutting slices to fit. Mix salt, mustard, and paprika, and add eggs, milk, Worcestershire sauce, and cheese, stirring until well mixed. Pour mixture over bread and bake in a moderate oven (350 Fahrenheit) 30 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

PUNGENT SAUCES give an extra fillip of flavor to fresh shrimp. For luncheon or supper try cooking the shellfish with olive oil, onion, celery seeds, paprika and wine or beer. Serve sauce separately for those who like to dunk.

Fresh Shrimp Provides Base for Many Meals

By EDITH M. BARBER

Almost everything goes to show that fresh shrimp is the favorite shellfish of the country. This is always impressed on me particularly when I am in Chicago, where Louisiana shrimp is sent in such quantities.

Edith Barber

In California, shrimp seems to enjoy the same popularity, although the crab legs of the Pacific — most of which come from farther north than Los Angeles — were appreciated even more by Eastern visitors. We ate so many of them with the before-dinner appetizer that we feared we would not have room for the steak which is the special feature of the Lawry restaurants.

We New Yorkers chose a so-called New York cut. This is not listed on many menus in this big city where, instead, "sirloin strip" is likely to be used. Of course, all the steaks were marinated in one of the herb-flavored salad dressings.

The fresh shrimp appear often with pungent sauces and are sometimes featured as luncheon or supper dishes, almost invariably with a highly seasoned sauce. Sometimes the flavor depends to a great extent upon the olive oil that furnishes the base for the sauce. Again, tomatoes, tomato paste, herbs and a dash of a hot seasoning — such as Tabasco — will be combined.

SHRIMP WITH SPECIAL SAUCE

2 to 3 pounds raw shrimp
1-3 to ½ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons finely minced onion
2 teaspoons celery seeds
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1-3 to ½ cup consomme, wine or beer
Large lettuce leaves
Italian-style bread, plain or garlic toasted

Clean shrimp. Blend olive oil with onion, celery seeds, salt, pepper, paprika and consomme or wine or beer. Place shrimp in preheated chafing dish or in skillet and pour sauce over it. Cover until shrimp are pink and tender. Remove shrimp to preheated platter, leaving sauce in pan or pour into bowl for dunking. Serve with Italian-style bread. Yield: 4 servings.

SHRIMP PIQUANTE

½ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons flour
1 medium onion, chopped
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
½ bunch green onion tops, chopped
1 stalk celery, chopped
½ green pepper, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Tobasco
1½ pounds raw shrimp, shelled and cleaned
Cooked rice

Blend oil and flour in saucepan over low heat. Add chopped onion and cook until flour is slightly brown and onion is tender. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, onion tops, celery and green pepper. Cover and cook over low heat for 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in salt and Tabasco. Add shrimp and cook about 10 minutes longer. Serve with hot cooked rice. Yield: 6 servings.

Tasty Recipe

CAULIFLOWER ORIENTAL

1 medium onion, finely chopped
½ cup diced celery
3 sprigs parsley, finely chopped
1 tablespoon butter
1 bouillon cube
1 cup hot water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
Dash pepper
1 medium cauliflower, cooked and drained.

Saute onion, celery and parsley in butter until tender. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water and blend in cornstarch. Add soy sauce and pepper. Add to onion and celery mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Place cooked cauliflower in serving dish and pour sauce over it. Yield: 4 servings.

Federal Trust Funds Fighting Losing Battle

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government's huge trust funds—to pay old age pensions and unemployment benefits and build highways—are losing out in the race with high interest rates.

With credit scarce, interest rates have been climbing, and the government has had to offer its own bonds at better terms.

The trust funds, however, have not been able to take advantage of these higher returns on the government's bonds. Even though they must invest their money in government bonds, the trust funds are also restricted to buying low-interest government notes.

The treasury is saving millions of dollars as a result.

Tied up in the various trust funds are 55 billion dollars in government securities—about one-fifth of the national debt of 274 billion dollars.

The interest they collect on their government securities is a matter of internal government bookkeeping, not actual cash. But they are a real cost of government all the same, just as are the interest payments to private investors in government bonds.

The government has been paying investors 3.66 per cent on its short-term 90-day loans and, since Oct. 1, four per cent on its long-term bonds.

Under federal law, however, the bonds bought by the trust funds are tightly restricted.

The Old Age & Survivors Insurance Fund, for example, presently receives only 2½ per cent on the government securities it can buy. The interest rate is set under a formula providing a return equal to the average on all outstanding treasury securities issued originally for at least five-year terms.

Receives Same Interest

The Civil & Foreign Service Retirement Fund receives the same interest under the same formula.

There is a chance that these funds may be allowed a higher interest rate in the months ahead. But to qualify for it under the existing formula, the treasury must alter its policies and stretch out the planned payment of the national debt.

The highway fund and the unemployment fund also are restricted in the returns they get from government securities. They presently receive 2⅞ per cent on their investments in government securities under a formula similar to that applied to the Old Age & Survivors Insurance Fund.

The Railroad Retirement Fund and the National Service Life Insurance Fund each are permitted to buy government bonds paying three per cent. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., however, can receive only two per cent on the government bonds it buys.

State Livestock Show

HARRISBURG (UP)—Thousands of farmers and perhaps twice as many children are expected to see Pennsylvania's first annual National Livestock Exposition and Rodeo in the State Farm Show Building here next week.

The show, sponsored by the state Livestock and Allied Industries Association with the help of a $50,000 legislative appropriation, will present more than 2,700 head of beef cattle, swine and sheep competing for cash awards totaling over $75,000.

A major feature of the show will be the five-day rodeo, in which 200 of the nation's top professional cowboys are entered in the competition for $10,000 prize money. In addition Annie Oakley and Gene Autry will be on hand for five nightly performances and a Saturday matinee.

Autry will bring his colorful pair of trick horses, "Champion" and "Little Champion," for a show which will include a demonstration of why "a horse is a cowboy's best friend."

Gail Davis, the Annie Oakley of television fame, will also demonstrate her talents as a cowgirl, marksman and singer.

The rugged bronco-busters will match their skills and hides against the rodeo stock of show producer Tommy Steiner, of Austin, Tex. Five regular events are scheduled, including bareback and saddle bronc riding, calf roping, steer dogging and Brahma bull riding.

Judging of the livestock entered from 29 states and Canada starts Monday afternoon, entering full swing Tuesday and running through Thursday.

The show's grand champion steer must be placed on the auction block Friday. Other steers and market hogs and lambs go on sale at the same time, with all livestock to be released at 2 p.m. Friday.

Baruch Claims Railroads Are Our Vital Arm

NEW YORK (UP) — Financier Bernard M. Baruch said today the nation's railroads are a vital arm in our national defense setup and must be preserved at all costs.

Baruch told United Press that railroads must be permitted to merge into strong regional systems if they are to be healthy and vigorous.

The elder statesman said the railroads face some serious financial problems and are operating under regulations drawn up when they held a virtual monopoly over freight and passenger traffic.

Baruch, who rose from a $3 a week errand boy to a millionaire by the time he was 30, said the many parallel railroad lines and systems in this country are "wasteful and unnecessary."

He urged that steps be taken to speed up regional mergers which would benefit the public through more efficient and economical rail service. He also advocated abandonment of unprofitable services, where such action is in the public interest.

Baruch declined to express an opinion about the recently-announced proposed merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads. However, Baruch said the consolidation should be given careful consideration.

The proposed merger would combine the nation's two biggest railroads into a nearly $6 billion system blanketing the northeastern section of the country. It would be the biggest merger in corporate history.

Women, League Hold Halloween Party at Church

The Woman's Department and the Zion's League of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints combined efforts to promote the annual Halloween party in the church social rooms last Friday evening.

All persons not in costume when they arrived were given outfits and ordered by Daniel Boon, the law of the frontier, to wear the outfit for the remainder of the party. Dressed in the outfit of a backwoodsman was Jerome Williams.

Games of interest for all age groups were under the direction of the leagues. Entertainment was provided by Bobby Grizini, accordianist. Prizes were awarded for the most outstanding costumes, and refreshments were served by the women's department.

The Youth Fellowship of the Brownstown Christian & Missionary Alliance Church, Fayette City, launched a missionary emphasis campaign last night at the church. Slides and films of Alliance mission fields around the world are being featured.

The first set of pictures, entitled "City Evangelism in Siam" was shown last evening, with tape-recorded narration accompanying the slides.

Other missionary pictures to be shown in the series are: "Preparing Preachers for Indo-China", Dec. 4; "Barriers Broken" (sound film), Jan. 8, 1958; "Jerusalem the Divided City" (sound film), Feb. 5; "Story of Tong See," Mar. 12; "Village Evangelism in Siam," April 9.

A new film now being prepared on Alliance Missions in New Guinea will be shown May 7.

The public is invited to attend these services at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Roland Gray is church pastor.

New Basketball Coach Is Speaker

Tom Healey, new basketball coach of Bellmar High School, will be the guest speaker at the Fayette City Lions Club meeting to be held tonight at 6:30 o'clock in the dining room of the Methodist Church.

Healey will discuss basketball in the school district. He has been secured by the program chairman, Richard Richardson.

Robert Premoshis will be in charge of the business meeting.

New Slash in Integration Force

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army today ordered a new 50 per cent cut in the number of National Guard and Army airborne troops assigned to enforce school integration at Little Rock's Central High School.

This cuts the number of airborne troops from 500 to 225 and the number of guardsmen from 1800 to 900.

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker said the move was being made in line with the "steady improvement in community stability" at Little Rock. He said the reduction would be made "forthwith."

In announcing today's troop cutback, Brucker said that as in the previous National Guard reduction, men to be retained on federal duty at Little Rock will be selected on an individual basis.

Open House at Fayette Center

An invitation has been extended to the residents of the Fayette City area to attend an open house at the treatment center of the Fayette County Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

The observance will be held tonight from 5 p. m. to 10 p. m. The Center is located at 40 Union Street, Uniontown.

The new therapeutist, Ray Gatain will be on hand to answer questions. Mrs. Olive Raymond is the executive director.

Several persons in the Fayette City - Belle Vernon area are receiving treatment at the center.

Political mudslinging began in ancient Rome. All candidates for office wore the white toga. If they were unpopular, people threw mud at them until their white raiment became the toga defiled by mud.

MEN!

This is GIVE-YOUR-WIFE-A-GAS-DRYER Month

No more good drying weather for five long months! That's enough reason for giving your wife an automatic GAS dryer now! But even more important, drying clothes the old-fashioned way is hard, backbreaking work at any time, in any weather. Dragging around heavy baskets of wet wash that weigh a ton. Struggling and straining with clotheslines!

How about it, men? A modern GAS dryer, you know, is far less expensive to install than an electric dryer—and costs much less to operate. Only a penny a load for gas. And GAS dries clothes so soft and fluffy.

This is GIVE-YOUR-WIFE-A-GAS-DRYER Month.

ORBIT OF THE SPUTNIKS — This is an artist's conception of how the paths of Sputnik I and II make a pattern (arrows) that resembles a ball of string wound around two hemispheres. The orbit of Sputnik II with its space dog, follows the same pattern as Sputnik I, but at a higher altitude.

Inter-planetary Flights in Near Future, Russian Scientist Says

(Soviet scientists are confident that interplanetary rocket flights will be possible in the near future, and Prof. Ari Sternfeld, prominent Russian authority on astrophysics and author of several basic works on cosmic navigation, explains why in the following dispatch written for the United Press. It is one of the very rare occasions that Soviet scientists have written exclusively for publication in the West.)

By PROF. ARI STERNFELD

MOSCOW (UP) — We have become witnesses of a remarkable new event in the history of astronautics — the birth of man-made satellite number two.

This isn't simply a second Sputnik. This "bio-Sputnik" has aboard it a living being, the first live scout of unexplored cosmic space.

For the first time an experiment is being made for the study of the action of lengthy weightlessness on a live organism.

Such experiments on animals had been successfully conducted in the past with the aid of high altitude rockets but they lasted for not more than three or four minutes. Now, millions of people on earth together with scientists of the whole world wait with baited breath for a reply to the question: "How long will this first cosmic traveller be able to exist?"

Dog Reported Normal

Coded signals from the apparatus signals, "dog behaves calmly." Evidently, living conditions on Sputnik are quite satisfactory. This makes us confident that with time we could send man into the cosmos.

How long we will have to wait is another question. To achieve this we must also have full confidence in the possibility of returning man to earth. But questions of braking at the high speeds that a rocket will hit its return trip require still additional investigations.

The first Sputnik had a calming effect from the viewpoint of meteorological threats to astronauts. The second will probably prove to us that harmful ultraviolet solar radiation can be fully absorbed by Sputnik's shell without permitting it to affect living organisms.

Since the second Sputnik revolves at a higher altitude than the first, the area from which it may be observed increases considerably. Whereas Sputnik Number One's flying height of 900 kilometers (506 miles) can be observed within an area having a radius of 3200 kilometers (2000 miles, Sputnik Number Two whose height is 1700 kilometers (1060 miles) has an increased observation circle with a radius of 4200 kilometers (3000 miles).

But actual observation of Sputnik at such distances can be accomplished only through improved types of astronomical instruments and under certain atmospheric conditions.

The second Sputnik will stay on cosmic space considerably longer than the first. Its period of revolution around the earth will with time decrease only insignificantly, for it revolves 800 kilometers (497 miles) higher than the first Sputnik's orbit where air resistance is practically negligible.

A deep vacuum such as the one that exists at the height of 1700 kilometers (1060 miles) wasn't obtained in a single laboratory on earth. If Sputnik remained constantly at this altitude, its life would probably last for many years. Sputnik experiences very slight air resistance although it is quite insignificant even at the perigree (the point on its orbit nearest earth.

Even so Sputnik's speed will decrease in time under the influence of this factor.

Cites Two Orbits

The first man - made satellite had at the beginning of its existence a revolution period of 1 hour 36.2 minutes, the second satellite —1 hour 43.7 minutes. Basing ourselves on the laws of heavenly mechanics, it is easy to calculate that the large axis of the second Sputnik orbit is approximately 700 kilometers (440 miles) longer than the large axis of the first Sputnik's orbit. Hence the perigree of Sputnik II passes approximately at the same height as the first Sputnik's perigree at the beginning of its existence.

But even the lowest point of the man-made satellite's orbit is high enough to enable sending Sonde rockets to other bodies of the solar system without fear of the air mass surrounding the earth.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Alice Lutes, who died 17 years ago today, November 7, 1940.
Today are hearts are heavy,
Our thoughts are all of thee,
Oh! How we miss you, mother, dear,
No one but God can see.
Some say time heals an aching heart,
But, no, it isn't true,
For 17 long years have passed, dear mother
And our hearts still ache for you.
Sadly missed by daughter, Rose, and grandson, Bucky.

Case Closed

TULSA, Okla. (UP)—Three tombstones have been turned over to the stolen goods division of the Tulsa police department in recent years after having been left on lawns as a prank. In a report to his superiors on the grave markers Wednesday, Sgt. I. B. Streck observed "none of the owners have shown up to claim them."

Runaway Fathers Losing Places To Hide; States Cracking Down

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP — An extraordinary system of interstate cooperation, developed quietly over the past few years, has left runaway fathers with no place to hide from laws requiring them to support their families.

Every state and territory under the U.S. flag is now covered by the system, which is designed to take the financial incentive out of desertion, the so-called "poor man's divorce."

The last link fell into place this week when the District of Columbia joined 53 other states and territories which had previously adopted laws providing for reciprocal enforcement of family support obligations.

Until last July, when Congress passed the belated bill which authorized the District of Columbia to participate, the federal government had no part in bringing the system into being. It was entirely a project of the council of state governments, which has sponsored conferences each year since 1952 to induce the states to work together on a problem which long has plagued them all.

In the past, state boundaries offered a high degree of protection for men who abandoned their families.

While desertion is a crime in every state, the machinery for extraditing and trying a runaway father on criminal charges is cumbersome and rarely invoked. When criminal procedures are used, as a last resort, they are little help to the abandoned family, since a man in jail can't support anyone.

The great advantage of the new system is that it operates under civil, rather than criminal, procedures. The absconding husband or parent is not thrown into jail, nor is he hauled back home under arrest. He can live where he pleases and work at any job he can get.

But he is required, under penalty of contempt of court, to make monthly payments for support of his family.

The system works across state lines because of its reciprocal enforcement feature. In effect, each state promises to cooperate with every other state in tracking down and collecting support payments from any deserter who takes up residence within its borders.

Suppose, for example, that a man deserts his family in Los Angeles and moves to New York. The abandoned wife goes to a local court, and gives sworn testimony about the desertion, the best information she has on her husband's whereabouts, the number of children to be supported, the amount of money needed, etc.

California officials relay this complaint to New York, where another court takes over the job of finding the deserter and bringing him to book. The New York court, after questioning the defendant, fixes his monthly support payments, based on what he can spare after meeting his own necessary living expenses.

The payments are made directly to the New York court, which forwards them to California where the local court sends a check to the family. Failure to meet a payment places the deserter in contempt of court, and liable to a heavy fine or jail sentence.

Officials say the system works best in big cities, where courts have the manpower and the determination to enforce collections. It works poorest in rural areas, where county courts are sometimes unable, or unwilling, to bother with collecting support payments for a far-away family.

Six Are Killed As Train Rams Car in Indiana

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—Six persons were killed Wednesday night when a New York Central system passenger train traveling 75 m.p.h. rammed a car on the west edge of New Carlisle, Ind., near here.

The victims, four women and a boy and girl, all from the New Carlisle-Hudson Lake area, were thrown from the demolished car and killed instantly. The train braked to a stop about one-half mile from the crash and backed up to the scene.

State police said the driver, Mrs. Jean Vandenberg was driving south when she came to the crossing which was protected by a flasher signal.

She waited for a west-bound freight train to pass and then drove onto the dual track. Her car stalled and moments later was struck by the speeding east-bound passenger train.

Their car was thrown about 200 feet by the impact and one of the bodies was hurled onto a hill along the tracks.

Two youths were killed Wednesday night when their car was cut in two by a train near Grandy, Minn., about 53 miles north of Minneapolis.

Taylor Declines Hunting Invitation

WASHINGTON (UP) — Army Chief of Staff Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor Wednesday declined an invitation to go hunting in Alabama with Gov. James E. (Kissin' Jim) Folsom on Nov. 11. He said a change of plans would make it impossible for him to accept. Folsom's invitation was regarded as a gesture to make up for cancellation earlier this week of Taylor's Nov. 11 speaking engagement by the Birmingham Veterans Day Committee. The speech was called off "because of feeling" against the Army's role in the Little Rock integration dispute.

Gaillard Launches Crash Program To Save France

PARIS (UP) — Premier Felix Gaillard launched a crash program today to save the French economy with a $600 million loan from the Bank of France.

He was expected to get approval of his emergency stop-gap measure from both the National Assembly and the Senate today.

Gaillard lost no time in securing authorization from his cabinet to borrow 250 billion francs ($600 million) from the bank to meet France's domestic and foreign obligations. Approval was given at the first meeting of the cabinet following Gaillard's investiture by the National Assembly early Wednesday.

The Assembly planned to vote on the stop-gap loan this afternoon. The Senate then will meet to confirm the ratification.

With the pressing financial problem out of the way, Gaillard will be able to turn his full attention to other priority legislation:

—Renewal of emergency powers to fight the rebellion in Algeria.

—A recovery act designed to give the French executive wide authority to intervene in the national economy.

—Passage of a new revised "home rule" bill for Algeria.

If these measures can be pushed through the parliament, the government is expected to open a drive for constitutional reform and revision of the electoral laws.

Can Cure Tobacco Cravings

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Have the smoking habit? Want to break it?

If so, you might be interested in the experiments of a Swedish physician, Dr. B. Ejrup, who used injections of lobeline hydrochloride to help patients give up smoking. He reports good results, in certain cases. Some 73 per cent of those he treated cut their smoking by 75 per cent or gave it up completely.

Lobeline, a synthetic drug, seems to cut the craving a person has for tobacco. Some of the was no disagreeable taste in the became tasteless, although there patients tested reported cigarettes mouth or other discomfort while smoking durin the length of the treatment.

Only three patients of the 133 who took part in the experiments noticed a slight nausea about an hour after the drug was injected.

Now, why do persons want to give up smoking.

Not for the reason you might think. Dr. Ejrup says that fear of lung cancer was not a common incentive for combating the tobacco habit.

Actually, he found that the chief reasons given by his patients were hygiene and the fact that smoking had become expensive for them.

His reports on the tests indicate to me that giving up smoking might not be as difficult as most of you think. For example. Dr. Ejrup used a placebo (an injection which should have had no effect at all) on other patients to check the reaction of those who got the actual drug. Half of those who got the placebo only, and none of the drug, reacted favorably and cut their smoking.

Dr. Ejrup concludes that apparently "suggestion" plays an important part in breaking the tobacco habit.

Let me add emphatically that I think it does, too.

Question and Answer

J.L.M.: I believe I am suffering from diabetes. Can you tell me what a good diet would be?

Answer: The treatment of diabetes is mainly through the diet and injections of insulin when the condition cannot be controlled by diet. The kid of diet in any case depends on the severity of the disease.

World of TV—

'Hit Parade' Star Is Tired of Being Sweet

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — Virginia Gibson is a sweet young thing, but she wishes everybody would forget it for a while.

"It's one of the reasons I'm so happy about being part of Hit Parade,'" said Miss Gibson as she strawed up a chocolate milkshake. "All of my career, I've been a sweet, young thing — on the stage, in the movies, on TV.

"I have no objections to being thought of as young and sweet, but if I'm ever going to become an actress. I figure I'll have to do something different. That's the wonderful thing about 'Hit Parade.' It may sound strange to say it about a musical show, but it gives you a chance to develop as an actress by casting you in all sorts of parts."

Miss Gibson, a slim, blonde export of St. Louis, is one of a quartet of new singers recruited for "Your Hit Parade" this season. Before her TV hitch, Miss Gibson served a nine-month sentence with "Happy Hunting," a musical that starred Ethel Merman.

Tired Of "Sweet Roles"

Miss Gibson eyed the dregs of her milkshake and considered "Happy Hunting." "I played Miss Merman's daughter, a very sweet young thing," she said, "and also on Broadway, there was 'Look, Ma, I'm Dancing' in which I played a sweet ingenue.

"In Hollywood, it was the same sort of thing—sweet young girls, sweet girl friends, sweet wives, most of them musicals. I did get to play a dramatic role with Joan Crawford in 'Goodbye My Fancy,'—as a sweet co-ed.

"Then on TV, the same thing. I did a 'Lux Video Theatre' and played a sweet ingenue type," Miss Gibson recalled with some despair, "And in a 'Ford Theatre' I was somebody's sweet girl friend. And maybe you remember me as Johnny Carson's nice wife when he had his TV series."

Spotted By Agency

Miss Gibson landed her berth on "Your Hit Parade" after some executives from B.B.D.&O., an ad agency, spotted her in the Merman show.

"They called me up last February and asked me to audition," Miss Gibson recalled, "and they told me they wanted me. Well, Miss Merman had a contract with the producer of 'Happy Hunting' that said all the members of the cast had to remain with the show for the run of the play.

"But Miss Merman was very nice about it when I asked for my release. I told her the truth —that I felt I was marking time, singing the same songs over and over, that I wanted the opportunity to do something different."

Miss Gibson (her real name is Gorski—she was named after the drink with the onion in it) now has that opportunity.

"And it's marvelous," she said, "already on 'Hit Parade,' I've played a prim school teacher, a hillbilly and a social worker in a prison. One week I had a chance to play a witch. Believe me, it was just wonderful being a nasty old witch for a change."

More than one-half of the American Presidents had military experience at some time in their lives.

TV Actress Tells About Problems

(Vernon Scott is on vacation. Ann Sothern turns columnist today and discusses the problems confronting the comedienne.)

By ANN SOTHERN

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—People always ask me what it's like to be a comedienne and what makes a comedienne — probably because there doesn't seem to be too many of us in show business.

Being a comedienne has its joys, but it has its problems too. I guess the biggest problem is having a two-sided outlook on life.

The average girl, or woman, goes through life generally in one way—as a sweetheart, housewife and mother—concerned with all kinds of serious and precious things. But the comedienne, while she is concerned with these things too, always has to step back and look at what she's doing and then get semi-hysterical at the whole thing.

Problems From Men

Sometimes it really is funny, but the problem doesn't come from men. Men like to say they love a gal with a sense of humor. But the comedienne often has to make the things nearest and dearest to a man's heart seem as if they're a little ridiculous. While she participates in everything that her sisters-under-the-skin do, she remains objective and aware that it's all a little too much.

To compensate for this and to win the loyalty of the dears back again, she has to compensate by being even more feminine, so that her male audience doesn't resent her ability to be funny about things. This is where she is apt to get into trouble with the females. So that being a comedienne—not a farce comedienne—means walking a difficult line; but that's why it's so much fun and so exciting.

Likes Sophisticated Comedy

I like to do sophisticated comedy, and farce comedy too; but for a series, or a steady diet, the straight feminine comedy is the best thing to do—and generally, the most difficult.

Now that the series is over with and there is talk of other series and other films, the search is on again for material. There aren't too many good things written for the comedienne. So we talk and talk and talk to writers, producers, directors—trying always to find stories that have the right ingredients.

I've started singing again and have just made an album for tops records called "Sothern Exposure."

When pay TV comes, or interstellar TV, I'll be on that bandwagon too. So, you see, in spite of having to remain delicate and feminine all the time, you have to have a head like, and the determination of, a businessman.

Old City Found

AMMAN, Jordan (UP)—Archeologists of the American School of Oriental Research have discovered an ancient city of the Canaanite period—1,750 B.C. —near Hebron, it was announced Wednesday. Items uncovered at the ancient city of Itbekah include potteries, copper and glass objects and an ivory statue of a sphinx which indicated a link between this ancient Jordanian civilization and that of ancient Egypt.

Economist Sees no Depression

WASHINGTON (UP) — Gabriel Hauge, President Eisenhower's economic adviser, said today the recent slow-down in the nation's economic growth does not mean a sharp business downturn will occur.

"The pace of growth is never completely even," he said. "I see no reason to expect the economy to make any sharp change in direction."

Speaking before the American Finance Conference Hauge said "there has been some moderation" of recent inflationary pressures and he has "tremendous confidence" in the economic future.

The presidential aide described as "pure bunk" reports that the administration believes "a little depression right now would be a good thing." Neither, he said, does the government think "a little inflation is either a good or necessary thing."

"Our economy does not need to run a slight temperature to keep healthy," he said.

He said the administration will continue to pursue flexible policies adapted to changing conditions in seeking a sound currency and to foster economic growth.

MHS Is Selected as College Testing Center For Entrance Exams

Monessen High School has been selected by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J., as a center for the nationally-accepted College Entrance Examination.

Henry Furio, MHS principal, said today the Princeton service will establish a testing center at the high school and will administer tests next January 11 and May 17.

"This is indeed an honor and distinction for our high school," said Furio. "The only other testing center in the area is located in Pittsburgh."

According to Furio, most colleges now require new students to submit results of a College Entrance Examination before enrolling. All Monessen High School students who intend to continue their education are encouraged to take the examination.

"In the past, we've been sending our students to Pittsburgh," said Furio. "Now they will be able to take the test right here."

Students in other valley schools will also be tested in Monessen.

The College Entrance Examination, devised at Princeton, consists of a three-hour scholastic aptitude test and a series of achievement tests. The charge for the examination is nominal: $1.50.

Furio predicted that 60 students from Monessen alone will take the test this year. At least that many more are expected from other schools throughout the area.

The results of the test will determine in a great majority of cases whether or not a student will be accepted for college work. The test is open to both junior and senior students in high school.

On Jan. 11, the aptitude test will be given. On May 17, a series of specialized achievement tests will be offered.

Members of the Monessen High School faculty will administer the tests.

$12,000 Savings Claimed for State

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Property and Supplies Department said today the agency saved the Commonwealth $12,000 during the past 12 months by changing procedures for purchases of insulin.

Department Secretary Andrew M. Bradley said the change involved enlarging the competitive bidding field from two to eight companies and accepting four instead of two brands. The insulin is used for state institutional patients.

Methodist Church Membership at New Record High

Membership in the Methodist Church in the United States and its possessions has passed the 9½ million mark. Membership of the Methodist Pittsburgh Conference now stands at 166,731.

The Rev. Albert C. Hoover of Chicago, director of the statistical office of the Methodist Church, reported that during the past year church membership has increased from 9,444,820 to 9,566,629. This figure includes the denomination's 26,872 clergymen, but does not include 1,382,207 baptized children listed as preparatory members.

The statistical report shows 39,359 organized churches with an estimated value of church buildings, equipment and land of $2,217,026,516.

The Methodist Pittsburgh Conference includes 462 organized churches with estimated total assets of $51,831,986, according to official conference statistics.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service now has 31,259 local groups and Methodist Men now have 10,195 chartered clubs, according to the national figures.

The Pittsburgh Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service now has 841 local church societies while chartered Methodist Men's Clubs are listed as 228.
